STORM HOLDS UP GRIP REPORTS

More Than 100 New Cases Are Discovered Within 24 Hours

There were 1,474 new cases of influenza reported to the State Board of Health. Included among them are 405 in Boston. It is felt that many reports have been held up by the storm conditions.

The total for twenty-four hours shows an increase of slightly more than 100 cases. In the same period there were ten deaths in Boston. Thirteen new cases of pneumonia were reported in Boston.

Cambridge tops the list of suburban cities with 97 new cases reported. Lynn has 82, Haverhill 77, Malden 76, Wellesley 57, Worcester 47 and Pittsfield 31.

MAYOR TO IGNORE VALERA

Peters Decides He Can't Receive President of Republic Not Recognized by U. S.

President Eamon De Valera of the Irish Republic will not be officially received by Mayor Peters when he comes to Boston February 15, according to information obtained at City Hall.

The Mayor has decided not to receive De Valera because he is the president of a Republic not recognized by the United States State Department.

Mayor Peters had not decided today whether he would receive the distinguished Irish professor unofficially. No plans have been made for a reception luncheon by the city's chief executive. Mayor Peters was out of town when De Valera was in Boston on his first visit.

A committee planning for the De Valera meeting here on the 15th has made several endeavors to reach the Mayor directly, but has failed.

INSANE WOMAN HAS A MILLION IN ART

Chicago, Feb. 7.—In an unpretentious home here an aged woman lives among a million dollars' worth of art treasures she is too old to care about. She is Mrs. Evalina M. Kimball, seventy-nine, widow of W. W. Kimball, piano manufacturer. A list of her art treasures was made public today, following the adjudging of Mrs. Kimball as "a distracted and feebleminded person."

PRICES OF COAL ADVANCE 50 CENTS

The price of coal has advanced 50 cents a ton. Hard coal is $13.50 a ton under the new schedule and soft $10.50. The reason for the increase was variously given as transportation difficulties and the shortage of labor and supply.

Queens Snub Ex-King of Montenegro

Paris, Feb. 7.—Nicholas, the aged ex-King of Montenegro, now living in Paris, has been "sent to Coventry" by other members of European royalty who are spending the Winter here. Nicholas has given up efforts to regain his throne and has turned botanist and amateur painter. He spends much time in his garden or amusing himself with a child's set of water colors.

Nicholas is greatly depressed at being snubbed by royalty. He attempted to call upon former Empress Eugenie and former Queen Amelia of Portugal, but both refused to see him.

WILSON WRITES TREATY VIEWS

Sends Letter to Hitchcock, Which Senator Reads at Conference

By International News Service.

Wilson today outlined his position on the treaty situation in a letter to Senator Hitchcock.

The letter was read to the conference of Democratic Senators today, and according to one Senator who left shortly afterward it caused "a row." Those of the Democrats who favor steps toward a compromise attacked the President's policy, which was vigorously defended by Senator Hitchcock.

After more than two hours senators began leaving the conference, which was still in session. They stated that no headway is being made.

In the letter the President indorsed the position taken by Senator Hitchcock in opposition to the reservation on Article X., it was learned. The President's letter, it was said, largely reaffirms the position which he took in his message to the Jackson Day dinner of the Democrats.

The White House today took the view that Viscount Grey's indorsement of reservations to the treaty has aided the President in his fight against reservation. White House officials declared that there was evidence of a sweep of sentiment against the reservations as the result of what is termed outside influence by a member of the diplomatic corps.

ALL SAVED ON LINER ASHORE

32 Passengers of Stranded Old Dominion Ship Taken Off by Rescue Boats

New York, Feb. 7.—The police tug Patrol started to remove the thirty-two passengers from the Old Dominion liner Princess Anne, stranded off Rockaway Point, New York, shortly after 11 a. m. today. They were to be landed at the Battery in this city, it was said.

The passengers and seamen suffered acutely throughout the night from cold and freezing spray and from lack of food and fresh water. The waves had died down somewhat, but the ship was swept by a biting wind.

During the night not a single wireless signal was received from the stricken ship, confirming the belief that her wireless system was completely out of commission.

Shortly after noon it was stated all the passengers had been removed.

The launching of the rescue boat was accomplished only after the greatest difficulty. One man was washed overboard from the boat, but was pulled back in safety.

DANIELS ATTACKS ADMIRAL

Submits Evidence to Senate Committee Showing His British Bias

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Evidence aimed to show that Admiral Sims was pro-British was presented to the Senate sub committee investigating medal awards by Secretary of the Navy Daniels today.

Secretary Daniels said he would not have recommended Admiral Sims for a permanent rank of admiral "had I known conditions which I now know."

Admiral Sims accepted a decoration by the British government before authorized to do so by the Navy Department, Secretary Daniels said. He explained that Sims acted under the authority granted by the act authorizing "officers of the military" to receive such honors. This was against the will of the department, Daniels said. The law since has been accepted to sustain Sims' contention.

The attitude of Admiral Sims, favoring the acceptance of foreign honors by men and officers of the United States Navy, was scored by Daniels.

Secretary Daniels read a statement by Representative Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, declaring that Sims told him (Byrnes) that Pershing was "unable to break through the German lines and that the United States Navy had done little to combat the submarine."

He said an officer of the army had told Byrnes that only Admiral Sims would have made the statement, "Which was British propaganda."

Secretary Daniels gave as a second reason why he would change his recommendation the statement attributed to Sims that "the United States should not develop a merchant marine, as it should be controlled by Great Britain because of geographical positions."

"The third reason is based on Sims' writings in a current magazine," Secretary Daniels said. "There was a wide difference of opinion between the Secretary of the Navy and Rear Admiral Sims with reference to medals or decorations conferred by foreign governments."

$54.77 Is Each One's Share of U. S. Cash

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 7. — Each person's share of Uncle Sam's ready cash, based on the amount in circulation February 1, is $54.77, according to United States Treasury figures.

Every individual in the United States, the treasury announced today, has greater per capita wealth than he possessed one year ago when experts gave the per capita wealth as $53.58. The treasury figures are based upon a revised estimate showing a total population in the United States of 106,725,000 and the amount of money in circulation $5,846,086,199.

HOSPITALS GET MILK SUPPLY

Six Carloads Arrive, Relieving Serious Shortage Among the Sick

Six carloads of milk, the first to reach Boston in two days, arrived at the South Station consigned to the hospitals of this city whose supply is about exhausted.

The announcement that the milk was on its way was made by Mayor Peters, who had urged Percy L. Todd, New England regional milk director, to put forward every effort to relieve conditions in the hospitals.

The Massachusetts General Hospital, Peter Bent Brigham and Homeopathic Hospitals had reported to the Mayor that the milk shortage was a serious matter, and unless relief was obtained, would occasion considerable suffering.

Milk Director Todd said that the entry of the milk marked the resumption of service in this commodity. The six cars were picked up on sidings at Framingham and beyond. They came in over the New Haven road.

10 MEN OF CREW ARE MISSING

Steamship Reported Being Beaten to Pieces at Rockland, Me.

Radiogram received at the Navy Yard today from the scout guard cutter Acushnet reported the steamship Polias being beating to pieces on Cilley Ledges, near Rockland, Me. A boat containing ten men, who put off from the doomed ship last night in defiance of orders, is missing. Others of the crew were taken off at daybreak today by life savers. The Polias crashed onto the rocks at 6 o'clock last night.

Some of the features of the aftermath of the big storm today were:

1—Thousands suffering throughout New England because of food and coal shortages.

2—New Haven service shows no improvement, with all local trains cancelled. Lines still blocked by rolled trains and derailed cabins. New York train late had 8 service on the Fall River line.

3—Steam trawler Pollux, rammed by drift ice in the Narrows, sank at her wharf with 80,000 pounds of fish aboard.

May Try Minister for Hamilton Wedding

Unless it can be definitely established that Mrs. Laurens Morgan Hamilton, bride of the grandson of J. Pierpont Morgan and great-grandson of Alexander Hamilton, is not a divorced woman the Rev. Charles V. Brine of Portsmouth must stand trial before the Episcopal bishop of New Hampshire.

If it be established that Mrs. Hamilton was divorced the Portsmouth clergyman, rector of Christ Church, has violated a canon of the Episcopal church, which forbids the marriage of divorced persons, except for one reason, and then only on proof.

The canons of the Episcopal church provide that a clergyman before marrying a divorced person must be shown a legal document, prepared by an attorney known to the clergyman and resident of the diocese, showing that the party to be married was the injured party in the divorce action. This document must then be submitted to the bishop for approval.

The Rt. Rev. E. M. Parker, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of New Hampshire, received no such document nor did Rector Brine, so far as is known, before the impending trial of Portsmouth rector. The only obstacle in the way of this trial is the proof that Mrs. Hamilton is not the Mrs. Gertrude Warren who was twice married and once divorced.

Watertown's "Best Janitor" Appeals

Being the best janitor in Watertown is a virtue that has its just rewards.

Walter Smith, janitor of a local rubber factory, was in the Waltham court today charged with stealing forty yards of shoe lining cloth and two pairs of rubbers. He was given thirty days in the House of Correction.

His employers asked the court to let him go. "He is the best janitor in Watertown," the employment officer stated. "He is too valuable to let go. His job will be waiting for hi mwhen he returns." He appealed the sentence.

THE TELEPHONE SERVICE SITUATION

To the Public:

The present emergency makes it imperative that the public be fully advised of a situation which reacts seriously on the efficiency of telephone service.

The telephone operating forces are depleted, both because of interruption to transportation everywhere and still more because of illness.

The number of absentee operators in the Boston area alone is over 1,000, or 25% of the total force.

Those employees who are still on duty are doing a splendid work, and their ability to continue must be conserved.

In order that the way may be kept open for the efficient handling of emergency telephone calls, telephone users are asked to restrict their use of the service to calls of an emergency nature. Prompt consideration should be given to this request if those who are in real need are to be aided.

4—Use of privater automobiles in Boston condemned by Public Works Commissioner Thomas F. Sullivan.

5—Telephone service improving and should be normal Monday.

6—Blue Hill Street Railway cancelled all schedules.

A shift of the wind to the northwest, causing a cessation of the storm, today loosened the fetters that have shackled Boston and New England and gave promise of better weather to come.

The improvement in conditions, however, failed to relieve hardships in many places, with food shortages existing at Nantucket, on the Cape, Squantum, Quincy, Hough's Neck, Weymouth and Hull.

The impossibility of getting trains to these places cut off the milk supply, and the food situation in some instances has become critical.

According to the weather man, the blizzard has moved north, carrying with it heavy rains, which are causing discomfort to the people in Nova Scotia. For Boston and vicinity several days of normal weather, at least, were promised, with a drop in temperature. The official forecast reads:

"Fair, somewhat colder tonight and Sunday; fresh northwest winds, diminishing." No cold wave is in sight.

A trail of suffering and hardship, with transportation still badly crippled, marked the third day of the big storm.

Many families were without sufficient coal, milk or provisions, and the large amount of sickness was increased by the inability of physicians to make their rounds.

Commissioner of Public Works Sullivan censured Boston business men today for using pleasure automobiles in the city at this time. He said that the use of pleasure autos in the congested streets retarded the work of his 1,800 laborers and 450 teams.

"I cannot understand," said the commissioner, "why the business men use the pleasure autos. They have rendered my force about 50 per cent inefficient. The Elevated, too, is rendering. Three of their cars were tied up when pleasure cars blocked the tracks for an hour and a half this morning, rendering seventy-five laborers idle for that time.

STORES CLEANED OUT.

Weymouth, isolated since Thursday, is in danger of a food famine. Not a store in the town has any bread, potatoes or meat.

The 250 passengers on the four trains which were stalled early Thursday morning were rescued last night after spending thirty-four hours in the cars. Trucks of the Weymouth Fire Department fought their way through drifts eight feet high and carried the passengers from their perilous position. Accommodations were made for them at the homes of residents of the town.

The transportation situation was as bad today as yesterday, and in some cases worse, according to reports received at South Station. All local service was cancelled by the New York, New Haven & Hartford road, and numerous minor and obstacles on the tracks impeded service generally.

Inbound trains were on an average several hours late in arriving, and from over an hour to several minutes late in departing. Officials of the New Haven endeavored to run trains to sections not easily accessible by trolley service.

There was no service today to or from the following centres: Dedham, Readville, North Easton, Stoughton, Mattapan, Foxboro, South Braintree.

The Wrentham branch was choked. One train was stalled at Middleboro. The incoming line from Plymouth was still locked by the Boston bound train from Plymouth which stalled at Seaside Thursday in a deep cut after covering only a mile.

An engine was derailed this side of Bridgewater, locking both main lines and tieing up traffic to and from points on the Cape. The train which left Bridgewater 10 a. m. stalled at Campello. Futile efforts were made to dig it out of the heavy snow drifts.

TRAINS BLOCKED.

Two other trains were stalled, one at East Braintree and the other at East Weymouth. There was a block at Shawmut on the Quincy branch, and still another was stalled at Neponset on the same line. A caboose was reported off the tracks at Mansfield, stopping traffic both ways.

The midnight train from New York which was due at 6.30 a. m. did not arrive until 8:35. The mail train from New York, due at 5.30 a. m., arrived at 8 o'clock. The Fall River Express from New York, due at 8:30 was three hours late in arriving.

Trains leaving for New York via Hartford were somewhat late in getting away.

Traffic conditions were slightly improved in Cambridge.

Large forces of men from the Elevated and the city were busy removing the snow from the principal thoroughfares.

The car line over Massachusetts avenue to Arlington, although not running on schedule, experienced no serious delay.

The East Cambridge line running over the viaduct was handicapped by traffic, while the car line over Prospect street was blocked several times.

The Blue Hill Street Railway has cancelled all Canton cars for lack of coal and because of storm conditions. A snowplow and one car are stalled in the drifts three miles from Canton.

$500 Cash Prize and 100 Medals for School Children

The Boston American Will Award Them for the Best Essays Written for Abraham Lincoln's Birthday Celebration

Attention, school children! Here is an important message for you:

Here is how you may compete for $500 in cash, the first prize, and the 100 silver medals the American offers:

The awards will be made to the writers of the best essays on the relations of the leading European nations towards the United States during Lincoln's time and—

The lesson of his words and his attitude on these situations applying to our time—to America and Americans today!

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST.

Each essay must not contain more than 1,000 words.

All essays must be in the American office by February 9.

Address the envelope to LINCOLN EDITOR, the Boston American, 30 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass.

The contest is open to school children of all ages and class rank. The age and class rank will be taken into consideration by the judges in deciding the winners. More will be expected of the older and higher grade children than the younger and lower grade children.

The idea will count as much as the phraseology. But clearness and directness of style will be expected from all contributors.

PURPOSES OF THE CONTEST.

The whole plan is to bring home to everybody in this great country the necessity of their living by the slogan AMERICA FIRST.

Americans must know what attitude European nations have had towards our country in the important crises of our history.

Let young Americans show those growing into citizenship with them and the older folk why we cannot depend upon European friendship or upon the attitude of any European nation as permanent.

Any one of the nations of Europe may be friendly towards us today, and any one, or all of them, may be hostile tomorrow.

America must depend upon itself, upon the spirit of its own people, the wealth and resources of its own country, the power of its own arms, and the independence and self-reliance of its own government.

In a phrase—AMERICA FIRST!

And, remember, your essays must be in the American office by February 9, when the $500 cash prize and 100 medals contest ends.

The Plymouth Rubber Company and other industries have been shut down for want of help.

The two trains stalled here since Thursday night pulled out today, after going back to Canton Junction and back to Dean's Junction over the main line. The eight-five passengers, including fifteen women, were taken care of by the Red Cross. The women slept in private homes, the men in the town hall. The branch railway line from Canton Junction to Stoughton is impassable.

Gloucester was reported to be in desperate straits, with no electric cars running, train service reduced to a minimum and telephone wires down in many places. The influenza was said to be spreading rapidly.

In Lynn no street cars were running, and the residents were forced to depend on jitneys which did very man service. The Narrow Gauge to Wilbraham and Revere resumed its service today.

Dorchester, South Boston, Wellesley and other suburbs suffered from poor car service.

NO TRAINS ON CAPE.

The Cape continued to be isolated, with no trains since Wednesday night, and no newspapers. Telegraph wires went down during the sleet storm, leaving the residents only intermittent telephone service for communication.

The Boston & Maine reported a considerable increase in its service and stated that schedules in many instances were almost back to normal. The Boston & Albany, however, experienced nearly as much difficulty as the New York, all the New York trains being many hours late.

The Boston & Albany experienced little difficulty in operating local trains in the suburbs. Trains from the West were delayed, the Berkshire proving a big barrier. At this point heavy drifts which had been plowed out were blown over the tracks again.

Boston Harbor is filled with ice which makes navigation extremely difficult, and the coal situation, which was decidedly serious before the blizzard set in, has assumed alarming proportions, with little relief in sight until the storm breaks and shipping and traffic schedules become normal again.

The seriousness of the situation is emphasized by the fact that Governor Coolidge has sent Director-General Hines of the Railroad Administration a message explaining New England's need for coal and requesting that relief be given these States as soon as possible.

Heavy drift ice today punctured the hull of the steam trawler Pelican in the Narrows, resulting in the sinking of the vessel a short time later at T wharf. Captain Dennis Hayes and the nineteen members of the crew were taken off in safety, although the captain and three men were suffering with influenza.

The trawler was inward bound from the Georges Banks with 90,000 pounds of fish in her hold, when struck by the ice. Captain Hayes left his sick bed and took the bridge, steering the unwieldy craft managed to work the Pelican into the wharf. The wrecking lighter Atlantic and several tugs were called to the assistance of the trawler. When her fires were covered by breaking water, the other boats were helpless and the Pelican sank. She was valued at $250,000 and her cargo at $5,000.

Lack of Coal May Cause Suspension of Courts

Fuel conditions at the Suffolk County Courthouse are again acute, and heat was shut off in all rooms for the purpose of conserving the small amount of coal on hand.

The contractor, on account of the storm, has been unable to deliver coal, and unless a supply is received by Monday it may be necessary to suspend the sessions of the courts.

Because of the frigid condition of the building the services of the women clerks in the various offices were dispensed with.

Traffic on Boston & Maine Is Slightly Better

Service on the Boston & Maine was reported as "slightly better, but a long way from normal." Local trains coming into the city were all late, but the outgoing service showed a decided improvement.

Service on the New Haven railroad was again in a state of confusion. A few trains crawled into the station from nearby communities, but they were isolated.

People of Hough's Neck Living on Canned Food

The residents of Hough's Neck and Squantum are depending on canned foods, as it has been impossible to get in or out of these places since Thursday. In addition to the food situation has become critical, as nothing is being brought from Boston and the one local warehouse has been exhausted of its small supply. The first train arriving Quincy since Thursday was the newspaper train, which arrived there at 6 o'clock Saturday morning.

Conditions Become Worse in South Boston

Street car conditions in South Boston were worse today than on the two previous days. Scores of electrics are stalled on Broadway and at Andrew square. Commuters going to work this morning were forced to walk several blocks. By 9 o'clock the tieup on the peninsula was complete.

Snow which had been cleared from the car tracks and piled in banks was blown into the entrance of the Andrew square tunnel and no cars were able to get in or out. Thousands of commuters were jammed in the tunnel stations.

Postal Service Beginning to Show Improvement

Postal service in and around Boston is gradually returning to normal, following the two days' blizzard, though trains are still far from being on time. Though still far from normal, postal service is being given to Weymouth, the Braintrees, Hyde Park, Winthrop and Revere, which were all late. Few trains left the station.

TRAFFIC SWAMPS FREIGHT CARS

Railroad Administration Reports More Business Than It Can Handle

Washington, Feb. 7.—Mid-Winter business offered the railroads to handle is so heavy that scarcely enough cars are available to meet the demand, according to reports from commercial agents of the railroad administration today.

Business is booming and the volume of output in all kinds of industries is steadily increasing, the reports showed. Heavy increases in the delivery of grain to vessels at seaboard and continued activity in the iron and steel industry, with many new pig iron furnaces started, were reported from the Allegheny region.

Movement of cotton to Southern ports is heavy. The pine lumber situation showed an increase in average orders, shipments and production. Unfilled orders in this industry amounted to 25,000 carloads.

The manufacturing outlook in the north-eastern territory, it was said, is exceptionally good, several new industries and additions to plants being reported. All industries report heavy unfilled orders.

The volume of traffic in the Southwest is far greater than the car supply, although the total loading of freight exceeds the figures for last year.

Winthrop Commuters Marooned Four Hours

Several hundred Winthrop residents who made an early start for the business district were marooned four hours early in the day on a two-car train at Battery station. With two locomotives the train left Winthrop at 4 a. m. but was unable to proceed after the stop at Battery station. Rain and snow falling at that hour froze on the tracks and the driving rods of the engines spun around without driving the train forward.

At 8 a. m. two more locomotives were put on the rear of the small train, and by the combined efforts of the four engines the train was pulled into Orient Heights.

Sandwich, Feb. 7.—Dr. Samuel Beale, after trying all night and all day, succeeded in reaching the home of Wallace Fitch, reported dying alone in his home in Forestdale. Physicians and others have tried in vain to bring aid to the sick man.

FACES TRIAL IN WEDDING

Rector Who Married Hamilton and Mrs. Gregory May Be Arraigned

the presence of two witnesses as prescribed by law. His marriage was secret for several days and when it leaked out the young officer was located by the American. He defended his bride against attacks made on her by members of his family and others. He declared that she was not the woman referred to and in this Mrs. Hamilton backed him.

She claimed that her husband, Gregory Warren, had died in England a year or two before. She also told this story to Rector Brine. Subsequently stories emanated from Los Angeles to the effect that a former husband of hers, from whom she was divorced, is living in that city.

If it be proven that her story is incorrect and that the other stories are true, Rector Brine will be tried before Bishop Parker. It is felt that in the event of a trial a jury would not be given him for his failure to look more carefully into the facts attendant upon the marriage.

New York, Feb. 7.—The American today received a statement from Lieutenant Laurens Morgan Hamilton, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pierson Hamilton and grandson of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, Young Hamilton secretly married January 26 to Mrs. Gertrude Warren, St. Louis beauty, said to be ten years his senior. The statement says:

"The misrepresentations which have appeared in the press recently concerning my marriage are entirely without foundation. I knew before my marriage that my wife was a very fine woman with unstained character, and any statements to the contrary are false, misleading and malicious. They will be dealt with to the fullest extent of the law.

Apparently these libelous reports are the result of a mistaken identity. This is not a surprise, but is based on what is admitted by those who have examined it as inconsistent and irrefutable evidence. The continued perpetration and circulation of these reports can only be regarded in the light of malice.

"As to reports that my parents have threatened to disown me if I have made a mistaken choice in them, those reports are absolutely false.

"I have no intention of leaving my wife, and as to the matter of divorce I regard it as a matter for my family to determine as they see fit and will not in any way affect my wife or myself."

The statement was also signed by Mrs. Hamilton.

MISS KNOWLES ADMITS WEARING WEDDING RING

TOLD NOT TO MARRY SPIKER

Welfare Workers Urge English Girl to "Look Before She Leaps"

Fall River, Feb. 7.—The probable cause of the persistent rumors of a marriage between Dorothy Knowles and Perley R. Spiker in England was explained by Miss Knowles herself at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Easterby, with whom she is staying. A wedding ring, known to have been worn by the twenty-two-year-old war-bride while on a visit to America, is believed to have been responsible for the marriage stories.

WORE RING ON BOAT.

"Yes, I did wear a wedding ring when I went aboard the Lapland at Southampton. I wore it during the journey across the ocean, because its absence and the presence of my baby might have caused embarrassing questioning and speculation on the part of the other passengers. I bought the ring myself.

"I told my mother everything that passed between Perley and myself. She knew that we were not married and never had any reason to believe that we were. She sympathized with and consoled me. Had it not been for her help in my time of trial I do not know what I ever should have done.

"There is no truth in the story from England that he ever gave my mother or myself 45 pounds. It is only another lie such as the papers have been printing about me. My mother knew the whole situation, and at first when I wanted to come to this country she opposed the idea, but after thinking it over, allowed me to come."

WARNED OF MARRIAGE.

Welfare workers have visited Emily at the Battersby home. They have told her to look before she leaped and not to marry Guy Spiker unless moved by love or by her affection for him. They reminded her that she had some ninety days before having to marry in order to escape deportation.

Guy is expected here tonight. No date has been set for the wedding as yet, and it is thought likely that the ceremony will be postponed for a few days. Mrs. Kate Hathorn steadfastly maintains that it will be held nowhere except in her own home and that no justice of the peace or other official will officiate. Local ministers are trying to dodge the honor of marrying the couple.

LAWRENCE BOY GEM THIEF SENT TO JAIL

Lawrence, Feb. 7.—George Elias, aged seventeen, alleged gang leader, was ordered to the Concord Reformatory by Judge J. J. Mahoney in the district court on three charges of breaking and entering and the larceny of jewelry valued at $415. The probation officer of the Lyman School for Boys stated that Elias had violated every rule of parole since he was given his liberty last October.

MORE SINN FEIN RAIDS IN IRELAND

Dublin, Feb. 7.—The police and military continue rounding up Sinn Fein suspects. Several raids were made on homes of well-known Sinn Feiners in the south of Dublin. As a result of country-wide pressure, Lord Chancellor Campbell has announced no prisoners will hereafter be deported without trial.

HALE INDICTED FOR MURDER IN VERMONT

Montpelier, Vt., Feb. 7.—The Grand Jury in Washington county returned an indictment against Guy Clifford Hale of Middlesex, and the present Representative of that town in the Legislature, charging him with murdering H. Lester Morse last Sunday, near Morse's home in Middlesex. Hale is in jail.

Woman Who Adopts Actor as Son

MRS. AGNES SUFFERN TAILER BURNETT.

DENOUNCES MAN MOTHER ADOPTS

Burnett Flays Andrews, Living With Wealthy Widow, as Adventurer

New York, Feb. 7.—From several widely separated points in the United States comes word of the curious career of the curly-headed youth living at the St. Louis Hotel in the apartment of his "mother" by unofficial adoption, Mrs. Agnes Suffern Tailer Burnett, widowed sister of T. Suffern Tailer.

Information from Washington, Los Angeles, San Antonio and elsewhere, indicate that the soft-voiced, stout young man whom Mrs. Burnett has taken under control of her estate was forcibly inducted into the draft army in 1918. Further, that at the time he met Mrs. Burnett he was an obscure motion picture actor known as "Jack Livingstone." His real name is said to be Robert L. Andrews.

In Los Angeles Edward N. T. Burnett, 21-year-old son of Mrs. Burnett, sketched the story of his mother's associations with Andrews or "Livingstone." He indignantly denounced the youth as an adventurer, and declared he had impersonated him (Edward) in contracting hotel and taxi bills. He added:

"I am powerless to do anything, because this man has won my mother's confidence, but I hope someone will bring him to justice.

"When I was East a year ago, I identified this man as Livingstone. I found he had contracted bills in my name. I stopped it, but I was unable to break up the association with my mother. He is clever, and knows family secrets. When he gets in bad another has to set him right again."

In startling contrast to his former loquacity, the elderly society woman's companion was silent.

FRANKLIN GIRLS AID FUND BY DANCE

The Franklin Square House young women in their work for the $140,000 clean-up campaign made big progress when about three hundred of the girls took part in a dance at the House for the benefit of the campaign. Over $100 was raised as a result of the evening's work and ticket sales.

Executive officers of the dance were Miss Dorothy Wiggins, chairman of the committee in charge, and the Misses Lois Stevens and Catherine Hughes. Mrs. Helen Perry was in charge of the candy sale.

PROVIDENCE SEEKS GIRL PICKPOCKETS

Providence, Feb. 6.—Two young girls much sought by the police for successfully extracting money from the pockets of men as well as deftly removing purses from handbags carried by women, are credited with a system that has so far baffled the police. The girls are described as stylishly gowned and good talkers.

"I actually caught a girl's hand in my pocket and held the hand which clasped my money roll," said a man at police headquarters.

HAVE GERMAN JUDGES, URGES CONAN DOYLE

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE.

London, Feb. 7.—In all fairness we must admit that we Britons would be deeply resentful if the Germans had the upon the law, demanded Maj. Beatty and Jellicoe for trial before a German court. I suggest, as a means of alleviating the situation, that Germany be asked to provide one or two judges to be members of the international tribunal that is to try the alleged culprits.

AGREE ON 3-YEAR DELAY ON LOANS

Washington, Feb. 7.—Deferment for not more than three years of the interest payments on American loans to the allied government and conversion of the demand obligations held by this government into long-term securities, have been approved, in effect, by the House Ways and Means Committee, although there has been no formal agreement.

ALLOW WHISKEY IN CASES OF INJURY

Washington, Feb. 7.—Recognition of the therapeutic value of whiskey as a first aid remedy in cases of injury among employes of industrial establishments was given by the internal revenue bureau today in regulations which make it possible for such concerns to legally obtain and retain adequate whiskey supplies.

INFLUENZA HITS THE RAILROADS

Bad Weather Also Upsets Service Throughout Country, Hines Reports

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Influenza has wrought havoc in the ranks of railroad employes, seriously crippling the operating forces on some roads and necessitating curtailments in service on some lines, Director-General Hines announced today. Bad weather also is a contributing factor to delaying movement of traffic.

Because of the tie-up of equipment and congestions at various points embargoes have been laid in some divisions, particularly the eastern, against certain classes of freight.

Along the lines east of the Ohio are great accumulations of freight which will be delayed in delivery. As a consequence of conditions, passenger traffic has been considerably restricted.

Director Hines today reported an improvement in general export conditions at New York, permitting a relaxation of embargoes in that territory.

Director-General Hines stated he would continue in effect for some time the diversion orders issued to meet emergency needs of public utilities and railroads in the eastern territory.

Coal is being diverted from Hampton Roads to Philadelphia, New York and New England to speed up the movement of all rail shipments. To prevent greater accumulations of freight at eastern gateways, embargoes will be continued until clearing weather and better facilities allow freer movement.

Pneumonia Claims Two at Woburn

Woburn, Feb. 7.—Two deaths from pneumonia and one from influenza occurred here. Lillian Mantini, eight years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Mantini, had been ill since Monday. The services of a physician could not be obtained until yesterday. Fred E. Blowers of No. 30 Auburn street, died from pneumonia after a short illness. He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Roy Brown and Miss Mildred Blowers.

He was a member of the 9th Fifth Regiment for twenty years and fraternal organizations.

Ed M. Hartwell died in the Choate Memorial Hospital. He is survived by three brothers and a sister.

FORESEE POLAND SOVIET PEACE

Paris, Feb. 7.—When the British, French and Italian premiers meet in London to take up the Russian situation it is expected that they will demand a general election in Russia for the election of a constituent assembly as a prelude to possible peace negotiations between the allies and the Soviet if her own interests and those of Rumania and the Baltic States are sufficiently safeguarded.

The Polish trend towards peace with Russia is believed to have arisen mainly from England's unwillingness to pledge her military aid to the Poles fear that, even with such assistance as France may be able to offer, their country would be overrun by the Russian armies. Aside from these fears, the Poles desire to settle the Ukrainian affairs.

The final Polish decision will not be known France's attitude, was said. So long as M. Millerand remains premier, it is believed that this country will not formally recognize the Soviet government.

PAPER SHORTAGE NOW FELT BY CONGRESS

Washington, Feb. 7.—Democratic and Republican members of the Senate and House are getting a movement to take action relative to the print paper shortage. The question has "hit home." Members of Congress, who wish to have their speeches printed in pamphlet form for distribution among their constituents, find it impossible to get print paper, the cheapest grade used in this work by the government printing office, and are forced to use a still glazed paper, which costs more.

MEXICO PROMISES RELEASE OF ASKEW

Washington, Feb. 7.—The Mexican government has informed Washington orders that all possible steps be taken to secure the release of Joseph E. Askew, the American held by Mexican bandits, the State Department was advised today. No corroboration has been received of reports that Askew is held by Francisco Villa for $20,000 ransom.

SHIPPING BOARD BOAT ASHORE OFF HATTERAS

Word has been received at the communication office in the Boston Navy Yard from the U. S. Shipping Board steamer Police, stating that she is ashore on Old Chilley ledge, near Mosquito Island, and needs assistance. The Police was bound from Searsport to Norfolk. Chilley ledge is off Hatteras.

LUDENDORFF WILL REFUSE TO SURRENDER

Berlin, Feb. 6.—General Erich Ludendorff, upon being informed that his name was on the list of alleged war criminals desired by the Allies for trial, made this statement:

"It is judicially impossible that I shall refuse to surrender voluntarily."

MEXICAN RENEGADE GENERAL CAPTURED

Mexico City, Feb. 7.—Gaudencio de La Llave, former general in the Federal army who joined the revolutionary forces of Francisco Villa, has been captured by government troops. It is believed he will be executed.

CHURCH MORE THAN DOUBLES MEMBERS

Concord Junction, Feb. 7.—The Union Church of this town, Rev. Alfred Wheeler Stone, pastor, now has 257 members, an increase of 102 in three years.

Woburn Mayor Asks Whiskey to Fight Grip

Woburn, Feb. 7.—Mayor Golden has sent a request to the Internal Revenue Department for a supply of whiskey to be used by physicians in fighting the wave of influenza and bronchial pneumonia prevalent here.

The Mayor in his communication said the liquor would be distributed through the local board of health and charities.

CHARGE THEFT IN WHISKEY DEAL

John J. McCarthy and Woman Among Those Indicted By Grand Jury

John P. Costello has been indicted on seven counts by the Suffolk Grand Jury indicted for breaking and entering of dwelling houses in South Boston and the larceny of clothing and other personal property. Richard Martin is indicted for breaking and entering apartment houses in the Back Bay.

John J. McCarthy will have to answer to an indictment charging him with the larceny of $1,000 from Patrick F. Moe of Providence. McCarthy, it is claimed, interested Moe in the purchase of a lot of whiskey, and induced the sum of $5,500 to be deposited in a Boston bank, and gave McCarthy authority to draw upon it if the deal was consummated. The transaction fell through, and Moe when he went to withdraw the deposit found a shortage of $1,000.

McCarthy, together with John Lane and Martha F. Childs, is indicted also for conspiracy and larceny in securing and disposing of a wagon load of butter and eggs belonging to the E. R. Ames Company, Lane, who was a driver for the Ames Company, is alleged to have been a confederate with the other defendants, and to have received a share of the proceeds.

"CHRISTIANIZE PROFITEERS"

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 7.—A Christianizing of profiteers was advocated today by Mrs. William A. Montgomery, one of the leaders in the national conference of church women for conspiracy and larceny in securing and disposing of a wagon load of butter and eggs belonging to the E. R. Ames Company, Lane, who was a driver for the Ames Company, is alleged to have been a confederate with the other defendants, and to have received a share of the proceeds.

"CHRISTIANIZE PROFITEERS"

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 7.—A Christianizing of profiteers was advocated today by Mrs. William A. Montgomery, one of the leaders in the national conference of church women for conspiracy and larceny in securing and disposing of a wagon load of butter and eggs belonging to the E. R. Ames Company, Lane, who was a driver for the Ames Company, is alleged to have been a confederate with the other defendants, and to have received a share of the proceeds.

"If profiteers could be guided to follow the Golden Rule—learn to live and let live—the problem with the problem would be a simple one. Profiteers need to be given the light of Christianity as disclosed in the Gospels of Africa or China," said Mrs. Montgomery. A decent living wage for missionaries will be discussed at the conference.

Delegates, representing 9,000,000 Protestant women will draw up a program calling for the expenditure of $300,000,000 to spiritualize women in every corner of the earth and to solve their social and economic problems.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, opened the conference. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who is chairman of the committee on arrangements, may attend one of the sessions if the President's condition permits.

MRS. REAVES IS AWARDED $259

Providence, Feb. 7.—After eight hours deliberation a jury awarded Mrs. Harriet Reaves of East Providence damages of $259.02 from her father-in-law, Walter R. Reaves, for the alienation of her husband's affections.

She asked for $25,000.

Mrs. Reaves is twenty years old and was married to Cyril Reaves two years ago after they had eloped from their homes in East Providence. In recent months the husband has been living with his parents.

Both the father and mother were made defendants in the suit, but the jury held that the mother was not guilty. During the trial Reaves testified that his father had been paid $200 by the father-in-law to compromise the wife by taking her to a roadhouse. Mr. Reaves declared that the money was for automobile repairs.

STORM CLOSES MANY NEW LONDON STORES

New London, Ct., Feb. 7.—The snow and sleet storm changed to rain, making traffic even worse than before. Many places of business are closed. The Groton Iron Works had such a small percentage of employes in the shipyard today that work was suspended at noon. No trolleys are running and the steam roads, especially the Shore Line from Boston, are practically still out of commission.

$1,120 IN POCKETS, STOLE $1.50 RUBBERS

Although he had $1,120 in his pockets, William Hunt of Nova Scotia, was arrested in Lynn today charged with the larceny of a pair of rubbers, valued at $1.50 from a department store, according to testimony in police court. He tendered a $50 bill to pay his $10 fine.

ANNA M. BURRILL SEEKS DIVORCE

Mrs. Anna M. Burrill of Cambridge has filed a suit for divorce against her husband, Samuel B. Burrill. They were married January 22, 1898. She alleges gross and confirmed habits of intoxication and asks for the custody of five children.

MRS. LAWLESS CHARGES CRUELTY

Mrs. Nancy A. Lawless of Newton has filed a suit for divorce against her husband, John W. Lawless. They were married in Newton, October 1, 1913. She alleges cruel and abusive treatment, non-support and unfaithfulness.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS ALONG ST. LAWRENCE

Montreal, Feb. 7.—Earthquake shocks were felt at Tadoussic, a Summer resort on the St. Lawrence, much frequented by Americans.

RATHOM SPEECH STIRS CLUBMEN

Boston City Members Demand Apology for Slurs on Irish

"I don't know of any action that has been or can be taken in the matter," said President George S. Smith of the Boston City Club when asked if the organization plans to apologize to Cardinal O'Connell because of the remarks made there by John R. Rathom of Providence.

Mr. Smith said that the matter had not been brought officially before the club.

Uncle Secretary Lloyd Hayes said: "John Morton, Edward F. McSweeney and Joseph Smith of Lowell protested to me as individual members of the club against Mr. Rathom's speech. Tell they did not represent any organization. They suggested that the club apologize to Cardinal O'Connell, also to the Irish members, and give an opportunity for an Irish speaker to refute Rathom's statements. If an official protest is made it will be placed before the board of governors and acted on at their meeting on February 17."

In addition, Mr. Hayes said: "When Messrs. Morton and McSweeney left me they said, 'You will hear from us further relative to this matter.'"

Mr. Morton, one of whose ancestors signed the American Declaration of Independence, declined to discuss the matter today for publication. It is expected that he and other members of the City Club will not let the matter rest.

CHAIN OF PAPERS IS PLAN OF LABOR

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Plans for a chain of co-operative newspapers, to be owned and run by organized labor and to include every large industrial centre of the country, are under way, it was learned today.

Thirty-seven of them, most of them dailies, will be launched shortly, it was stated. Co-operative newspapers are part of the program of the all-American labor-farmer co-operative congress to be held in Chicago, February 12. Walter Liggett, who established a chain of farmers' co-operative papers for the Non-Partisan League, will report to the congress.

The unions of Charleston, W. Va., are taking steps to establish a co-operative daily on the order of the Seattle Union-Record. Plans have also been made for a co-operative daily in Spokane, Wash.

A campaign to put 200 farmers and workingmen in Congress was launched today by Labor, the official organ of the Plumb Plan League.

A campaign to put 200 farmers and workingmen in Congress was launched today by Labor, the official organ of the Plumb Plan League.

"The unions are nearly 20,000,000 wage-earners and farmers in the United States. Yet they have not more than a score of representatives of both branches in Congress.

"The workers and farmers should have 250 men in Congress if they had their share. The lawyers alone have 260 members.

"It is those who produce the wealth that enable the lawyers, the bankers, and the rulers of the nine score states to go to Congress, who are inadequately represented."

FRENCH DECORATION FOR COONEL PIKE

Colonel S. L. Pike, infantry, of the army supply base, South Boston, will be decorated with the French Legion of Honor with the grade of chevalier, Tuesday, by Major-General Edwards.

ACCUSED OF THEFT OF TWO DRESSES

Charged with larceny of an express bundle containing two dresses valued at $61, and holding stolen goods in possession, Charles McRoberts of Medford, alias Mitsonaki, was arrested in Malden. He has been arraigned and was held in $1,000 bail until next Wednesday.

NIECE EXECUTRIX OF DRISCOLL WILL

The will of Jeremiah F. Driscoll of Malden, who died November 30, 1919, has been allowed. Addie L. Hughes of Malden, a niece, has been appointed as executrix and has given a bond of $17,000. The estate is valued at $9,300.

WATERTOWN BOYS HELD FOR THEFT

Charles Tiffany and Francis Sheehan, Watertown youths, were arraigned in Waltham court, charged with breaking, entering and larceny of perfumes and toilet waters from the drug store of L. W. Shands. They were held in $500 bonds each for a further hearing.

Locke Estate $15,000

The will of Warren A. Locke of Cambridge, who died January 31, 1920, has been filed, and names his wife, Mrs. Madeline Locke, executrix. The estate is valued at $15,000.

Lowly 'Spud' Replaces Coin in Poland

Washington, Feb. 7.—The common, ordinary, garden variety spud has at last come into its own. Potatoes are being used today as currency in certain rural districts in Poland.

The potato, according to a dispatch from Warsaw to the American Red Cross, is the staple article of food in these regions and its value fluctuates far less than any of the various types of paper money which are in circulation. In the district around Grodno, for instance, about twenty pounds of potatoes are regarded as a fair weekly wage for the ordinary workman.

One of the large owners in Grodno, whose home was wrecked during the war, refurnished the entire house with articles purchased with potato money.

WOMAN ENDS LIFE BY GAS

Mystery Surrounds Suicide of Mrs. Frazer in Chelsea Room

Mrs. Adeline Frazer, about thirty-five years of age, a lodger at No. 35 Clark avenue, Chelsea, committed suicide last night soon after two guests had left the room she occupied at that address.

Oddly enough the friends she had been entertaining, and who were lodgers at that house also, left the house at midnight and have not been seen since.

They were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. McDonald, and when they registered they claimed to be from East Boston. They came about three weeks ago, at about the same time Mrs. Frazer did, and were her only intimates among the lodgers.

The belief persists that she was married to a man named William Frazer, a longshoreman employed in Boston. He visited her about two weeks ago, but did not live with her at any time since she first went to the Clark avenue address.

A peculiar feature of the suicide is the discarded suits from the clothing she wore there were no other articles of apparel found in the room. It is known that earlier in the week she washed a number of articles of clothing, but what they were is more or less a mystery.

When the door to her room was forced today some keys were found on the dresser. Investigation revealed that they were those which the landlady, Mrs. Clarence Fentress, had given the McDonalds.

WORRY OVER EMPLOYERS' BUSINESS CAUSES SUICIDE

Fear that his employer had lost all his customers and could not get them back was given as the motive for the suicide of Patrick Breen, janitor, at No. 77 Bolton street, South Boston street, in a closet in the kitchen of his home, placed the muzzle of an old army revolver in his mouth and blew his head off.

Breen had been employed as assistant to Thomas Wilby in a blacksmith shop on A street. Wilby some time ago became the proud plaything in charge of Breen, who was unable to meet the demands made upon him.

Elizabeth Breen, wife of the suicide, who is hard of hearing, did not hear the shot report, although she slept in the next room.

Physicians who recently attended Breen contemplated sending him to an institution because of his state of mind.

FIRE AT CITY HOSPITAL; PATIENTS NOT ALARMED

A fire in the employes' quarters of the City Hospital, on Harrison avenue was extinguished so quietly that few of the patients knew of the blaze.

Engine 33, Ladder 4 and Chemical 16 responded to a still alarm and passed through the hospital yard to the rear of the building, facing Albany street without sounding a bell.

The blaze was discovered in the lounge room of the employes' quarters by Michael Hogan, a cook, as he was preparing to go on duty at 8 a. m. The blaze had started in a waste paper basket and some of the woodwork and caught fire. He summoned other employes and they succeeded in putting out the fire before the fire apparatus arrived in answer to the still alarm. The damage was estimated at $500.

TWO ARMY OFFICERS ARE TRANSFERRED

Colonel William Francis, C. A. C., Fort Williams, Portland, Me., has been relieved from duty there and ordered to Washington for temporary duty. His son, infantry, is relieved as inspector-instructor with the National Guards in Arkansas and ordered to Montpelier, Vt., to take the same position for the National Guards of that State.

AMERICAN READERS AID CLANCEY FUND

The fund started by the Boston American for the widow and son of Patrolman William G. Clancey now totals $861.45, the latest contributions are C. P. Rockwell, Inc., $25; Brenda A. Privite Hospital, Providence, R. I., $13; Mrs. Boyle, Dorchester, $1, and "In memory of Robert E. Warnick's mother," $1.

BOSTON WOMEN AID SERBIAN CHILDREN

The Boston Woman's Committee of the Serbian Child Welfare Association of America held a meeting at the Mayflower Club to aid half a million destitute Serbian children. Sergeant Ruth Farnum, who served with the Serbian army during the war, addressed the gathering.

EMPLOYES DANCE IN PAUL REVERE HALL

More than half a thousand employes of the Direct Importing Company attended the second annual ball in Paul Revere Hall. The attendance was large despite the storm. E. F. Foland headed the committee in charge.

BATTLE SURVIVOR KILLED BY BLIZZARD

New York, Feb. 7.—After serving fifteen months in France as a machine gun officer, where he took part in three great battles, was gassed and decorated for bravery, Lieutenant Colonel Percival D. Davidson of the 22nd Infantry met his death in New York's blizzard. A snow-laden theatrical sign fell upon him.

MAN WITH 6 QUARTS OF WHISKEY JAILED

Patrick McLaughlin, aged 45, of No. 46 Chelsea street, Charlestown, was arrested by Patrolman Scannell in Charlestown, near the Somerville line, on a charge of violating the United States prohibition law, by illegally transporting six quarts of whiskey.

Limerick No. 2

Mrs. Rena C. King

Mrs. Rena C. King of 136 Pleasant St., Dorchester, is a former South Boston girl and a graduate of the public high school. This is her first attempt at poetry, although several members of her family have distinguished themselves in that line. Mrs. King has two little boys, Paul, aged two years, and Bobby, ten months old. Mrs. King declares: "I will raise my boys to be poets, although they have not as yet shown any propensities in that direction."

Here is Limerick No. 2 and the "best last line," as written by Mrs. King:

The American people turn pale
As British walks off with their "kale"
But it gets on their nerves
When she blithely observes,
"What we can't carry off, kindly mail."

RULES:

1. Friday, January 30th, the Boston American commenced publication of a daily incompleted Limerick, and $100 will be paid for the "best last line" sent in by its readers completing Limericks Numbers 1 and 2. Beginning with Limerick No. 3, a total award of $250 will be given; first award, $150, and for the next four "best last lines," $25.00, each will be given. In the event of more than one person sending in the same "best last line," similar awards will be made.
2. No one is barred from participating except employes of the Boston American and their families, who are absolutely barred. No one may send in more than one "best last line" to each Limerick.
3. The rhythm printed herewith is for the convenience of the readers and the Editors, but you do not have to use this particular blank.
4. Each Limerick appearing in the Boston American will have a number, and the "best last line" must be sent in a sealed envelope, by mail, addressed to "Boston American Limerick Department," P. O. Box 235, Boston 3, Mass. On the outside of each anvelope containing the "best last line" must be written or printed "Limerick No. ——." This is most important.
5. All "best last lines" must be received by the Limerick Department by 12 o'clock noon, four days after publication. Announcement of each award will be made in the Boston American one week after publication of each Limerick.
6. The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in or addition to these rules that may be deemed necessary for fairly and properly conducting the proposition, and the decision of the Boston American Limerick Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entering of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

ANNUAL B. A. A. MEET GIVES PROMISE OF BEING BEST EVER HELD

LONG PROGRAM FEATURED BY SPECIAL RACES

America's indoor Olympic games roll into history this evening at Mechanics Building, scene of the annual B. A. A. meet. These games, greatest of the country's board classics, promise to surpass all previous records on this particular occasion.

Never has popular interest and demand for tickets been so great, and never have so many star athletes entered. Every event on the long program has a champion or two in it somewhere, and the evening bids fair to provide the most thrilling contests of speed and endurance.

Every seat was sold weeks ago, and there has been a rush on the admission tickets, issued before the doors were thrown open for the first time in the long and honorable history of the Unicorn Club.

The rush seats will be opened up at 6 o'clock, and from the look of things there will be a big line waiting. An entirely new feature of track meets here or anywhere else.

From the class of the contestants, it is easy to imagine that many a record will be equalled or broken. The best fliers of the land have responded en masse to the club's invitations. The advance guard arrived through storm and snow, and all the knights of the spiked shoe reported in per best condition. A. B. A. A. meet is the world's series of the indoor athlete.

Hunter Mile Centre of Fans' Interest

Principal interest centres, of course, in the Hunter mile, the dash for the nationally famous trophy. Two of the contestants, Joie Ray and Mike Devanney, have won the event twice each, and need but one more victory to get permanent possession of this coveted prize. Devanney is not as good as he once was, but Ray is right at the top of his form. He will not take a parade, however, as Cutbill of the B. A. A. and Connolly of Georgetown are a pair who are fussy about ready to force someone to hang up a new record before being beaten to the tape.

Then, too, Simmons of Syracuse, the intercollegiate cross-country champ, is fitted for the event, as well as Gordon Nightingale, one of the country's very best distance men. The six will have one battle royal before superiority is determined. No race could shape up any better.

Fliers Entered for Forty-Yard Dash

Interest in the forty-yard dash is keen among the lovers of the sprint game. All the best of the fliers who fight later on for places on the Olympic team are in the lists, and Bill Eaton's record of 4 2-5s. seems more in danger than it has for many years.

Lorin Hitchcock, winner of the event last year, Bill Hayes, national champ over the century route, School of Missouri, and Paddock, the A. E. F. champion, and Kirby of Lafayette, form a quintet of streaks that can show heels to the runners of the well known world. And, of course, there's always the chance of a dark horse coming through, and upsetting the dope.

Dartmouth vs. Cornell in High Hurdles

Earl Thompson of Dartmouth and Walker Smith of Cornell, admittedly the greatest timber toppers of the present, will settle a moot point when they compete in the 45-yard high hurdles. The pair have acquired more fame and prizes than the rest of the field, but will not have the gold medal all to themselves, as several of the other entrants have all the earmarks of champions. Watt of Cornell and Shedden of Yale, among others, are sure to furnish plenty of fast competition.

Driscoll on Scratch in 660-Yard Event

Jake Driscoll of Boston College has come back into his best form, according to reports from University Heights, and will be on scratch in the 660, as well as run for his college in the relay. Driscoll is a sure enough flier, but he has a big field to haul down, with several really fine athletes out near the limit mark. Then, too, the low men, like Bawden of Tech and Caffrey of Tufts, will take the scratch man along at a sufficiently rapid clip.

Three Relay Races for Schoolboys

The schoolboys will have a real place in the big meet, which is no more than fitting. There will be three relay races for the youngsters—the 40, the 440 and the 1,000—and all the best performers from the high and prep schools have entered.

In fact there are several junior athletes hereabouts who are knocking at the door of national fame, and they will be out with all the others endeavoring to establish new marks for edification of the big throng.

Handicap Mile Is Big Event

There promises likewise to be as much excitement in the handicap mile as in the Hunter race. Simmons is entered in the event, and if he runs, he will find a lot of trouble trying to get away from Crawford of Lafayette. The pair are on scratch, with a real classy field spread out ahead of them. Crawford is the chap who gave Joie O'Connell such a desperate race in the Intercollegiate mile last year, and was beaten out in a hectic finish by less than a foot.

Caldwell and Ray to Settle Rivalry

An ancient rivalry will be settled in the 1,000-yard open, which comes late on the program, so that Joie Ray will have all the time he can recover from the Hunter competition, and run. Joie is on the scratch mark with farmer Dave Caldwell of the B. A. A., and the struggle between the pair should be classic. Dave thinks he can beat Joie, and Joie doesn't believe it, and what more could you want for a real contest? And Crawford and several others of class have handicaps that will make the champions burn up the boards to outrun.

Many Relay Races on Program

There will, of course, be the usual collection of relay races, always thrilling as, speckled with competition. All the historic rivalry, college, school and club settle differences, and give partisans something to yell about. Harvard and Yale meet, as do Dartmouth and Brown. Andover and Exeter, Boston College and Holy Cross, the B. A. A. and the New York A. C. and a flock of other natural and deadly (sport) rivals.

The B. A. midgets will perform as of yore, the specially trained teams of youths of tender years being entered for the prize the club offers. Further, a 2,000-yard race, with entries from Div. 10, Div. 16 and the traffic squad, looks like a real feature.

U. S. MAY ACCEPT PLACE IN THE I. B. U.

New York, Feb. 7.—Officials of the army, navy and civilian board of boxing control stated today that since the International Boxing Union has agreed to more equitable voting representation for America, England and France, and since England has taken an active part in the formation of the new body, the chief objections of the board to joining the organization have been removed. They indicated that favorable action is to be taken within a day or two on the invitation to join the new boxing body.

ZINN BECK TO MANAGE COLUMBIA BALL CLUB

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 7.—Zinn Beck, of the Vernon club, has entered into his promised land. He has been turned over to the club of this city, and he will manage that team next season.

Only five games a week are played in this circuit, which means a cotton ranch near Columbia and he will devote two days to making two bolls of cotton grow where there was only one before.

Golf Has Right of Way Over Trains

Pinehust, N. C., Feb. 7.—Mrs. F. Metcalf Kearns, of the Aswan Hunt Club, hooked her drive to the railroad tracks near the clubhouse as a train was nearing. The engineer, leaning out of his cab, saw the ball come to rest between the rails and perch upon an ideal but precarious "lie" in the form of tiny pile of cinders. He grasped the sitzmark and brought the train to a sudden stop.

Harvard's Rowing Year Opens Monday

Harvard varsity rowing officially starts Monday at 4 p. m., in Newell boathouse, with Coach Haines and Captain Wendell addressing the candidates and outlining the plans for the season.

Haines will be rowing coaches from Middlesex, Brookline and other nearby preparatory schools last night, explaining to them what defects were noticeable in former Harvard oarsmen who came from their respective schools.

HARVARD PLAYS ALL-STARS

Crimson Seven to Test Strength of Boston Aspirants for Olympic Games

The strength of the Boston All Star hockey team will be thoroughly tested tonight at the Ice Pavilion, Cambridge, when the team plays Harvard varsity. The Crimson seven serves at a fine tryout for the stars. Its forwards hold their positions and have developed a passing game, the two points to which the stars will give all their attention in the practice work next week.

MACK NOW MANAGES FREDDY WILLIAMS

Freddy Williams, formerly of Cambridge, but now of Dorchester, has placed himself under the direction of Eddie Mack. Williams, who has been away from New England for the past year, has met with marked success in the roped arena in New Jersey and Philadelphia.

Some of the boys that Williams has defeated since he has been away are Max Williamson, Johnny Hogan, Dick Stosh, Johnny Regan, Patsy Wallace, Young Maxwell and Freddy Reese. In all since he started boxing Williams has had fifty-seven fights and only lost three close decisions.

"PUTTING THE NEXT ONE GIVER"

THE STORM

NEW YORK: Blizzard downed all the phone wires without altering the telephone service a bit.

WASHINGTON: Woody is snowed in the White House. Hopes the bliza lasts four more years.

BOSTON: Snow tied up railroads with assistance of the U. S. Railroad Administration. All voters have taken to the cellars. Booze committee reports progress.

NEBRASKA: Wires down between Bill Bryan and Woody.

PHILADELPHIA: Blizzard is the first thing that the landlords have shared with the public since the last epidemic of measles.

CHICAGO: Legislature voted another million to purchase ice for the sweltering poor.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION: Much suffering among the checker players of New Hampshire. Boards covered with ice. Checkers all frozen. Chief of fire department has resigned until weather gets warmer. Thermos bottle exploded in Hip. Dunn's back pocket and blew the seat out of a morris chair he was buying on the instalment plan. Hip's widow expects to get a wreath from Sears-Roebuck.

MAINE: Temperature down to flatbottomed zero. Everything frozen brittle. Heaviest man in Portland is sore because somebody stole six feet of snow off his sidewalk. Barbers are starving to death. Whiskers are so stiff that guys can break 'em off themselves.

NEW JERSEY: Fourteen strangers were arrested in Rosalie for carrying concealed thermos bottles. Eighty-five thermos bottles have exploded in this State since the blizzard started. Charley McMahon slipped on ice and broke demijohn he was carrying to birthday party. Gallon of best wood alcohol gone to waste.

GREAT NECK: Fourteen feet of snow buried Great Neck yesterday, which was unnecessary by thirteen feet, eleven inches. Thomas A. Dorgan, the indoor mayor of Great Neck, announces that his private stock is down to zero and all his dry weather friends have deserted him. Tom is one of those birds who can tell it is cold without having to look at the thermometer.

SCRANTON: Owing to the blizzard the I. C. S. have given their pupils permission to stay home.

PITTSBURGH: One of the biggest contracts in history was let out to Hiram Bingham Kelthley Mills yesterday, who will now manufacture ear muffs for elephants. It is impossible to tell whether H's hot or cold as there ain't any red in the thermometer to judge by. The Carnegie Institution of Research has invented a master toothpick that will pick any tooth.

19 Games Scheduled for Brown Nine

The Brown baseball schedule as announced by Manager Earl R. Stephens today includes a total of nineteen games, twelve of which are to be played at Andrews Field. The schedule:

May 19—Holy Cross, Worcester.
May 22—Dartmouth, Providence.
May 26—Tufts, Providence.
May 29—Harvard, Cambridge.
May 31—Harvard, Providence.
June 5—N. H. State, Providence.
June 12—Amherst, Amherst.
June 16—Yale, Providence.

DUNDEE AND LEONARD WIND UP TRAINING

New York, Feb. 7.—Benny Leonard and Johnny Dundee wound up training here today for their eight-round bout before the Arena A. C. of Jersey City next Monday night.

Lowery to Enter Hotchkiss

Eddie Lowery, State junior golf champion, will enter the Hotchkiss school, Lakeville, Conn., having passed successfully the examinations. Eddie hopes to play in many of the State open tournaments this year.

Harvard Fencing

Harvard fencing team engaged Bowdoin this afternoon in Memorial Gymnasium at 4 o'clock. The Crimson foils were manipulated by Captain Royal Snow, manager, Sam Ordway and W. R. Brigham.

Big Tennis Tourney for Longwood Club

New York, Feb. 7.—No radical changes in the rules will be put into effect by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. This was the result of a four-hour-and conference over changes suggested by the rules committee, which extended into the early hours of today.

The title tournaments were awarded as follows: National singles to West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I.; National doubles to Longwood Cricket Club, Boston; woman's national championship to Philadelphia Cricket Club; National Clay courts to the Western Association to be awarded to some club later.

TWO SHOWS AT C. A. C. FOR THE HOLIDAY WEEK

The storm of the last few days held up the show at the Commercial Club last night in which Steve O'Brien and Nate Seigal were to show in the feature bout, and the entire card has been put over until next Friday night. It was announced today that Manager McKinley would stage a show on Monday, February 23, in addition to the regular meeting that week.

Bunker Hill Post Game

The scheduled basketball game between Bunker Hill Post, American Legion and the Pinger A. C. of the West End was postponed from last night until tonight owing to the severe storm.

Paddy Grant of the West End is handling the Pinger A. C., and has secured the services of some of the best players on the courts around Boston.

B.C. SEVEN WINS ROUGH GAME

Tech Outscored, 5 to 4, in Rough Game; Winning Point Comes Late in Game

A combination of football, hurling and hockey, on the part of Boston College sextet, brought to that array a 5 to 4 victory over the Tech team at the Ice Pavilion, the winning goal coming when but 20 seconds of play remained. It was a rough, rugged match, in the course of which the B. C. men showed a disposition to swing sticks at their opponents and to throw their bodies on the puck when it approached the vicinity of their goal.

Tech went into the lead on successive goals by MacNeil, but before the final half ended, Hughes, the one real hockey player on B. C., brought the score to a tie on two brilliant dashes down the ice. Hughes showed to the front with two more brilliant offerings in the second half, but goals by Thomas and MacNeil of Tech again tied the score, until with but 20 seconds to play, Farrell took a pass from Hughes and caged the winning point.

DATES SET FOR CANADIAN TITE SWIMMING EVENTS

Leonard G. Norris, honorabla secretary of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, notified Frederick W. Rubien of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States that the following dates had been agreed upon for Canadian swimming championships.

February 28, fifty-yard free style for men and fifty-yard free style for women; February 21, 220-yard free style for men and 100-yard free style for women.

All registered A. A. U. swimmers are cordially invited to participate in these championships.

PICK ALL-BOSTON HOCKEY TEAM

Murphy and Murchie Made Alternates on Olympic Try-Out Squad

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Johnny Murphy, high scoring man in the Amateur Hockey League, and quite generally regarded as best centre ice man in local hockey circles; and Harry Murchie, whose defensive play has been a leading feature in the recent All-Star hockey contests at the Ice Pavilion, have been accorded singular honors by George V. Brown and Ralph Winsor — very singular honors. They have been named as alternates for the All-Boston hockey squad, which means that if any of the regular members of that squad decline to play, Johnnie and Harry may take their places.

The regular members of the All-Boston squad as announced by Brown are: Downing, Percy, Symnott, Hutchinson and Gerard, forwards; Small and Tuck, outer defensive players, and Donahue, goal.

Just why Hutchinson was selected is not apparent to the majority of those who have witnessed his play this season, and especially in the recent All-Star games, for in the latter he appeared to be the weakest man on the ice and repeatedly interrupted the play of his team by loafing offside.

Another factor puzzling to the fans comes in the failure of the two team pickers to name a substitute outer defence player, for where they have named five men for the three forward positions they have named but two for the two outer defence posts.

PALOZOLO ACCEPTS HENRY MEYERS' DEFI

Tony Palozolo, manager of Al Calzone, did not waste much time in accepting the challenge buried by Henry Meyers in behalf of Frank Tillo. Palozolo posted $200 with the match Post as cover a similar amount put up by Meyers. The only stipulation that Palozolo made was that the match be at 128 pounds ringside.

"If Tillo is a lightweight he should be forced to make this weight. If he is a welterweight, I have Paul Doyle ready to knock him into the long jump. For the time being, Calzone will restrict his operations to the lightweight class."

CALZONE VS. McRAE AT MARLBORO TODAY

Al Calzone, Milford lightweight, has Howard McRae of Cambridge as an opponent in a twelve-round bout at Marlboro lats today. Calzone is now under the management of Tony Palozolo, who piloted Paul Doyle to the championship of the welterweight class in New England. Calzone looks every bit as promising a boxing prospect as Doyle was when Palozolo first took charge of this nifty welterweight's affairs. McRae will give Calzone a hard test. The Cambridge lightweight is a tidy boxer and good ring general and he can carry his rival along at a merry clip.

BOUT WITH TIPLITZ FOR SACCO IF HE BEATS BRITT

Jimmy (Young) Sacco, East Boston lightweight, will be matched to meet Joe Tiplitz in this city if he wins over Frankie (Young) Britt in their twelve-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday night. Sacco recently beat Tiplitz in a six-round tussle in Philadelphia, and believes he could also conquer him over the longer distance fray. Sacco last fought Britt the decision was a draw. Sacco has since improved.

KILBANE WILLING TO MEET LEONARD

New York, Feb. 7.—Johnny Kilbane, world's featherweight champion, has signified his willingness to appear in an exhibition bout with Benny Leonard, world's lightweight title holder. The purpose of the suggested bout would be in connection with the campaign to restore boxing to a legal basis in this State. He suggested that he and Leonard appear in an exhibition contest for the edification of the legislators at Albany.

BIG LEAGUES AFTER TWO COAST PLAYERS

Two members of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League, Second Baseman Jimmy Cooney and Third Baseman Willie Kamm, have attracted the attention of major league scouts and at least three big town clubs have made attractive offers for them, Detroit, Washington and Pittsburgh are the three who are most anxious to obtain these youngsters, but as yet none has made much progress in its efforts to buy them.

FRIZETTI BOXES GIANNI AT QUINCY

Jimmy Frizetti of Brockton and Gerard Gianni of Lawrence will meet in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Coliseum A. C. of Quincy tonight. Hugh Ramsay of Weymouth will box eight rounds with Tommy O'Toole of South Boston, while Johnny Marot of East Boston and Larry Malia of South Boston are also billed to travel eight rounds. Harry Ginsberg of Boston and Tommy Sheehan of Brockton will battle six rounds.

ROBINSON BOXES REID TONIGHT

Middleweights Battle in Main Bout at Commonwealth A. A. Show

By JACK CONWAY.

Pal Reid, one of the most promising middleweights in the East, will have George Robinson of Cambridge as an opponent in a twelve-round bout at the Commonwealth A. A. tonight.

It will be the first opportunity Boston fans have had to see Reid in action since the former tar beat Robinson at Framingham. In that contest Pal scored a knockdown in the first round and was well out in front when foreclosure ended.

There are few middleweights who can punch as hard as Reid. Boxing with his right hand extended, he is able to score with a full left-hand wallop. The blow lands with stunning force and usually drops Reid's opponent to the canvas.

Robinson says he was careless in the first round of his bout with Reid at Framingham. He admits this is what enabled the former sailor to get ever his big wallop.

Jack Noyes, South End welterweight, will have Battling Thomas of Chicago as an opponent in the semi-final of eight rounds. Al Ritchie of Providence and Tommy Drew of Lawrence will also box eight rounds, while Joe Chaplin of Lawrence and Young Bill Hill of Roxbury will battle six rounds.

MUGGSY TRAINING HARD FOR McMENIMEN BOUT

K. O. Muggsy's East Boston friends will spring something new on Boston boxing fans when they have a band at Mechanics Building next Monday night, when their favorite battles Johnny McMenimin in a twelve-round bout, under the direction of the Revaway A. A. Muggsy has been busy training for the match at a local gymnasium. It is the first time the kayking has taken the trouble to prepare himself properly for a ring contest.

Year's Pay for Babe, but Nothing More

New York, Feb. 7.—The New York American League club will pay Babe Ruth the salary called for in his contract, but nothing more, Colonel T. W. Huston says. Ruth is hurrying East for the purpose of demanding a portion of the purchase price.

"It's no concern of ours," said Colonel Huston. "It's between him and Frazee. Got any of it from us? Not a chance. We're not even interested."

BERLIN TO GET LIST AT ONCE

Nearly 900 Names of War Criminals Demanded Agreed On by Allies

Paris, Feb. 7.—Lord Birkenhead, the British Lord Chancellor, today withdrew his objections to certain names contained in the official list of Germans wanted for trial by the allies and the council of ambassadors voted unanimously for the immediate delivery of the list to the German government. A French diplomatic representative will present the list of nearly 900 names to the new German chancellor.

Six Dead Men Among List of Accused

Berlin, Feb. 7.—At least six Germans who have been dead for some time are said to be included in the list of war criminals demanded by the allies for trial. Three of these are:

1—General Fritz von Bulow, one of Hindenburg's best generals in the Masurian Lakes battles and who later commander the German centre in the 1916 battle of the Somme.

2—Major Elder von Der Planitz, who was the ex-Crown Prince's adjutant in 1914, and who was killed in action on the west front in 1918.

3—Herr von Sandt, former Civil Governor of Belgium.

Inclusion of these dead men in the list is eliciting much comment from leading Berlin newspapers.

The entire German press rages against the extradition demand, and is encouraged in its fury by the government itself, whose outward attitudes is one of defiance, though until the surface there are many symptoms of grave fear that the fiercer government will be wrecked against the rock of allied determination to secure the surrender of the culprits at all costs.

MORSE OFFERS $200 TON FOR U. S. SHIPS

Washington, Feb 7.—"Seventy-five per cent. of the war cost of our merchant marine can be realized in the sale of the vessels now owned by the Shipping Board," said Charles W. Morse, president of the United States Steamship Company, before the House Commerce Committee. Mr. Morse said he would be willing to purchase 100 ships of the 9,000-ton size at $200 or more per ton.

$307,768 NEEDED FOR MYSTIC SEWER

A report to the Legislature has been made that the cost of constructing a sewer for the disposal of manufacturing waste entering the Mystic basin in Arlington, Winchester and Medford would be approximately $307,768. The proposed sewer would begin at the present metropolitan sewer, near the junction of Strongwater Brook and Aberjona River.

DE VALERA AT LOWELL

Friends, County and A. O. H. Societies Hold Meetings in Hub Tomorrow

An enthusiastic reception awaits President Eamon De Valera of the Irish Republic when he arrives in Lowell tomorrow afternoon. Committees representing the various Irish organizations in the Spindle City will met him. He is to deliver an address.

On Monday De Valera will journey to New Bedford as the guest of Irish organizations in that city. During the day he will visit the grave of Captain Anthony of the ship Catalpha, on which John Boyle O'Reilly made his escape from Australia to America. He will also confer with captain Hathaway, an aged Fenian leader.

In the afternoon De Valera will be the principal speaker at a mass meeting at the Wamsutta Club of New Bedford, and in the evening he is to speak at the Elm Rink, the largest hall of its kind in the State.

EMMET BRANCH BALL.

Thomas Mahoney of the Boston Catholic Club, Charles S. O'Connor of the Boston School Committee and Peter Conroy will be the speakers tomorrow evening at the meeting of the Robert Emmet Branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom in O'Connell Hall, Hibernian Building, Dudley street, Roxbury. The annual ball of the branch will be held in Hibernian Hall, Wednesday evening. Eugene Curran will preside.

Dr. Henry V. McLaughlin is chairman of the Brookline activities in aid of the sale of Irish bond certificates, the drive for which opens in this State February 21. A conference of the Irish organizations in that town to take action on the drive will be held tomorrow or Monday.

A special meeting of the County Monaghan Association will be held in Paine Memorial Hall tomorrow evening to complete plans for the annual ball of the organization Monday evening.

VALERA GREETS MARTYR'S NIECE

Irish President Is Given Honorary Degree at Holy Cross

Worcester, Feb. 7.—While the dignitaries of Holy Cross College awaited the coming of Eamon De Valera today, an affecting meeting was taking place in the reception room of St. Paul's Convent between the Irish executive and a niece of Padraic Pearse, leader of the "Easter Week" rebellion, and martyred first president of the Irish Republic.

The young woman is a sister attached to the institution. She is an ardent believer in Irish liberty, and it was on her request that the meeting was arranged.

The interview was brief. President De Valera was accompanied only by two members of the local committee. As he left the reception room he cheered the young woman with the prophecy that the cause for which her uncle died was close to victory.

President De Valera arrived at Holy Cross more than an hour late to receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the institution. The crowd of students and members of the faculty had waited patiently, however, and his arrival was greeted with a succession of college yells and cheers for the Irish republic.

He was escorted to the Assembly Hall by Mayor Peter F. Sullivan, John F. Harrigan, chairman of the State committee on the Irish bond issue; Roger F. Scannell, Jr., of Boston; Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge, Edward J. Counihan of Cambridge and Dr. Patrick McCartan, ambassador of the provisional Irish government.

The presidential party was met by President James J. Carlin, S. J., of the college and Rev. Michael J. Esaris, S. J., who was master of ceremonies. The ceremonies in Assembly Hall were short but impressive. President De Valera, in accepting the degree from President Carlin, commended the college for its educational work and for the interest it was manifesting in the right of the Irish people to self-determination.

He briefly outlined Ireland's claims, and predicted that victory was within sight, and that the British ruling classes realized it.

President De Valera and several members of his party left on the 2:12 train for Springfield.

He will go to Lowell tomorrow, and later to New Bedford. Beyond that his itinerary was undecided today.

Martini Soup May Be Eaten, Not Imbibed

Bouillon a la Martini or Manhattan or any other familiarly known cocktail of pre-January 16 days cannot be served in toilets as a beverage, despite the ruling of Prohibition State Commissioner O'Connor of New York.

There's always someone taking the joy out of life. This time it's National Prohibition Commissioner Kramer who spreads the wet blanket.

In cooking, the use of liquor is permitted. But if it were used for soup, half of which could be 50 per cent. Martini, the dry law would apply, he said.

A Dartmouth dance will be held this evening in the Robbins Memorial Town Hall, Arlington, under the direction of Dartmouth College men.

R. I. JITNEY MEN MAKE PROTEST

See Plan on Foot to Legislate Them Out of Business

Providence, Feb. 7.—"Legislate the jitneys out of business so the trolley company can continue to gull the people," was the defiance hurled by Edward F. McGuirk, head of the jitney association, at a gathering of legislators at the State House, where it is whispered legislation ousting the jitneys will be passed during the present session. McGuirk says appeals are of no avail, and he wants a public hearing on any legislation against jitneys.

For weeks the jitney organization, credited with a membership of 3,000, have been gathering their forces and sent McGuirk to stand watch at the State House.

A prominent legislator says a bill is being drawn which will not entirely wipe out jitneys, but will put them under the control of the Public Utilities Commission, with drastic rules.

LETTY AND SIR HARRY CALL ON US

Unique is a word which is overworked and usually misused. The average person says a thing is most unique, but the word requires no qualifying adverb. It stands alone. Therefore you have to be careful who you apply it to if you desire to keep your reputation for faultless rhetoric unclouded.

Still you will agree with me that Charlotte Greenwood is entitled to the word. It ought to be pinned upon her like a medal, but there is nobody who resembles her.

Charlotte returns to Boston Monday and will inhabit the Majestic in "Linger Longer Letty," a piece said to be the successor of "So Long Letty." If one musical comedy can be the successor of another.

There are other girls as pretty as Miss Greenwood, as clever and as magnetic, but they do not combine with these qualities a pair of surprising legs, legs with a sense of humor and a talent for the grotesque.

So step up, Charlotte, get kissed on both cheeks by the general and get the order of the Croix de Unique pinned on your bosom.

Hoot Mon. Here's Sir Harry.

You think of a British nobleman as arrayed in a high hat and monocle, with other garments of course, and it is hard to realize that our little friend Harry Lauder with his funny face, his bare knees and his crooked walking stick is now wearing a title.

But "handsome is as handsome does" as the Rollo books used to aver, and Lauder has done his bit for the British empire. The greatest work he has done of course are his songs, which are the finest Scottish songs since Burns. Long after his jokes are forgotten and his bones are turned to dust people will be singing "I Love a Lassie" and "Roaming in the Gloaming." Others can imitate his dialect, his comedy and his appearance but they can't write his songs. Here tae ye, Harry lad.

Stays Right with George.

The instances are few on the stage today of feminine players keeping the names of their husbands, and even more isolated are the instances where they play in the same company. Because of this, the case of Mrs. George Arliss is extraordinary enough to be marked. In the last two productions he has made, Mrs. Arliss has played the role of the wife in the play in which Mr. Arliss has had the part of the husband. In "Jacques Duval" she plays his mother and while the part is not lengthy, as far as lines go, she invests it with the quiet, reserved dignity of the ideal English wife in the most effective. Since Mr. Arliss first came to America, his wife has always been with him, often playing in the same company.

Necessity is a Good Spur.

One of the reasons for the Ed Wynn Carnival, which has really caught on at the Tremont, is that it is the only way the comedian could get a job.

Wynn was magnificently conspicuous in the actors' strike. He was so conspicuous that when the strike was settled most of the managers knew about Ed the way the Allies feel about the list of people they want Germany to give up. So nobody had anything for him to do.

Whereupon the comedian, who really has an exceptional equipment of gray matter, decided that he would go into the manager business himself, write his own show and go out on his own hook. He has the backing of B. C. Whitney, the opera manager who had performed the wonderful feat of retiring from the show business without the aid of the bankruptcy court, and the result is the act at the Tremont in the result.

Wynn told the audience last night about a friend of his who was a bad swimmer, so he got the job as a traffic cop in Seattle. So could I get a job right here in Boston, judging by the condition of our downtown streets.

Where Folly Girls Go.

All Follies girls do not marry millionaires. Some of them graduate and become actresses. One of the most truly blondes in the Ziegfeld chicken farm was Jean Bedini, who served five years in the organization which played Boston a dirty, trick this season by not coming here.

In the 1917 edition she had a speaking part, or rather a weeping part, for she played the crying checkroom girl. This determined her to become an actress, and after looking for a job with Comstock and Gest in "The Rose of China," she is just as blonde as ever, and though her dramatic opportunities wouldn't satisfy Nazimova, she is entitled to report progress.

The Old Boys Remember 'Em.

In John Craig's new company are two actresses who turned many a playgoer's head twenty-five years ago. Both are now in the full bloom of middle age—Minna Gale Haines and Eugenie Blair. They both have prominent roles in Craig's special production of "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer."

Miss Haines was once leading woman with Booth and Barrett, which would seem to make her as old as Mrs. Methuselah; but the fact is that she was only a girl, a stage debutante when the great stars of a third of a century ago chose her to be their leading woman. She remained as leading woman with Barrett until his death. Then she dropped out of sight herself, with the help of a New Yorker who married her; and for twenty years or so the stage never heard of her. Then she loomed up again with Viola Allen in "The White Sister" and has been looming ever since in various companies.

Miss Blair was a star for about twenty-five years, beginning with "A Lady of Quality" and ending with "The Eternal Magdalene," and the remarkable part of it is that she followed Julia Arthur in both plays and yet never saw Miss Arthur act.

A Simple Confession.

Who reads those cheap fiction magazines with lurid covers you see on the newsstands, full of thrilling yarns and fantastic and weird tales, not very well told?

I do for on. So do a lot of other presumably intelligent people who ought to be praising "The World's Works" and other ponderous monthlies.

The reason. That's where the fledgling writers start, birds with something to say, even if they don't know exactly how to say it. The average writer acquires style at the expense of ideas and by the time he is promoted to the high priced magazines he has nothing to say but says it very well.

Everybody likes plot, imagination, lots of action. On the stage you find it in such plays as "At 9:45." From the rising of the curtain when gun up as a pistol shot is fired until the last minute when they pin the shooting upon somebody till then unsuspected there is action all the time. Old fashioned melodrama did not go out of business; it got a clean shave and a haircut, and jimmied its way into society.

Impolite Reflections.

When you come to think about "Tea for Three" none of the three principal players is in his first youth. The text evidently called for young people, since the heroine has been married only a few years, and her friend is expected to be youthful because he was her boy lover. Yet Fred Perry, the husband, has gray hair, Arthur Byron, the lover, has a bald head and Laura Hope Crews is not exactly in her teens.

I presume the explanation is that acting of the very best type is required to put over the curious little comedy, and such talent is not found in the very young.

Take It From Me.

When I heard that "Take It From Me" was coming back, I thought for a second and then said, "Oh, yes, the old man on roller skates." The description was a reporter on skates was one of the high spots of that musical comedy which played the Shubert early last season and which is returning to the Boston Opera House after Lauder vacates. But there were a lot of good features to it, and a couple of unusual comedians. After leaving Boston the piece went to New York, where it made a hit and stayed most of a season. It must have stayed out there, for few musical comedies ever come back.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Charlotte Greenwood, one of the funniest comedians on the stage, will begin an engagement on Monday, at the Majestic Theatre, in a new musical comedy success, "Linger Longer Letty."

Miss Greenwood's phenomenal success in "So Long Letty" is chiefly responsible for the new musical comedy, which in a sense is a sequel to the piece in which the lank and limber comedienne made her first big favorite. The book of "Linger Longer Letty" is by Anne Nichols, and the lyrics are by Bernard Grossman, and the music is the work of Alfred Goodman.

"So Long Letty" might have run on several seasons more, but this new musical comedy looked so good to Mr. Comstock that he decided to produce it without delay. The same cast of principals that supported her during the New York run of "Linger Longer Letty" will appear with her at the Majestic Theatre. Among the popular entertainers with Miss Greenwood are Louis Mink, Oscar Figman, Olga Roller, William Kennedy, Cyril Ring, George Sweet, Valerie Thorn and Frances Bendtsen.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE

A great deal of preliminary interest has undoubtedly been aroused by the announcement that Sir Harry Lauder, the famous Scotch singer and entertainer is to be at the Boston Opera House the coming week, with matinees daily except Monday.

One of the new songs that is said to breathe this characteristic Lauder spirit is entitled "When I was Twenty-One." This is one of the songs that apparently never tire as audiences, and for which, it is said, there are always persistent encores. Among Lauder's other new songs are "The Waggle o' the Kilt," "I Think I'll Get Wed in the Summer," "There Is Somebody Waiting for Me" and "January O."

GAYETY THEATRE

"The Hon Ton Burlesquers," which begin an engagement of one week at the Gayety Theatre, with the matinee performance on Monday, are presenting an entirely new show this season. It is a two-act musical farce entitled "Hurry Up," in which Georgie Douglass and John Barry are the featured comedians.

WALDRON'S CASINO

With the "Sporting Widows," which come to Waldron's Casino on Monday is June La Vasy, called the "Lady Beautiful of Burlesque," who possesses a voice by far superior to any on the burlesque stage. The management of "The Sporting Widows," were fortunate in securing the services of Al K. Hall, one of the funniest of comedians, whose talent as a laugh producer is recognized wherever burlesque patrons congregate. Among there included in the cast are Allen Rector, Billie McCarthy, Charles Mack, Ed Aiken and George Welst, who will portray different characters in the musical farce. "Here Was a Fool," a production embellished by magnificent scenic and electrical equipment. The twenty song hits and big dancing numbers will give all chorus girls an opportunity to display he magnificent costumes that have been imported especially for "The Sporting Widows." The Sunday night entertainments at the Casino are proving very popular.

KEITH'S

Wilkie Bard, England's greatest music hall comedian, will be the headliner at Keith's Theatre next week. Wilkie Bard is one of those men who appear about once in a generation. Next comes Anna Held, Jr., who is in every way an eminent successor of her eminent mother. Joe Cook will give his "One Man Show," which will give some idea of the versatility of this great vaudeville artist. Jack Norworth presents Jay Dillion and Betty Parker in "Nick-Nax of 1920," a revue that is original and clever. Jack Daly and Hazel Burlew will be seen in a cycle of dances.

SYMPHONY HALL

Into the short space of one afternoon and evening Symphony Hall will crowd the formidable drawing power of three giants of the music world tomorrow. Heredity will the dulcet tones of John McCormack's final verses of Eleanore of Coleridge-Taylor have dwindled to an echo when the dean of violinists, Yaye, will step forth in great the evening audience, accompanied by the young prius whom he looks upon as his successor, Mischa Elman.

In the afternoon McCormack will see a program of more or less familiar numbers, starting with Mozart and winding through the saccharine mines of Brahms, Granville Bantock, Rachmaninoff, Chadwick, a group of Irish songs, and a final group of Neapolitan by Leo Lehmann, Uda Waldrop, Schneider and Taylor. As in previous recitals, Donald McBeath, violinist, will contribute interesting numbers.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

An announcement of exceptional interest for the coming week is that "The Five Million" will be produced for the first time on a stock stage by the Somerville Players at their David Square playhouse. This play scored a splendid success in New York. The leading feminine role will be played by Miss Elise Bartlett, while the leading male role will be played by Malcolm Fassett.

MALDEN AUDITORIUM

Special arrangements have been made for the anniversary week of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln in the production by the Temple Stock Company of "Abraham Lincoln, the Great American." Mr. Dwight Meade will essay the leading male role, while Miss Marilyn Bushnell will play a role of delightful charm.

THE SUB-DEB COMING

A charming story of romantic girlhood will be revealed at the Hollis Street Theatre, beginning Monday, February 16. George C. Tyler will present the new comedy in four acts, entitled "Bab," by arrangement with Arthur Hopkins. Magazine and book readers are no doubt familiar with Mary Roberts Rinehart's beloved subdeb, Barbara Putnam Archbald, and they will be delighted to know that Edward Childs Carpenter, the author of that delicious studio study, "The Cinderella Man," has dramatized Mrs. Rinehart's stories.

"THE WEDDING RING"

As a further tribute to Boston theatregoers, William A. Brady, who recently treated local playgoers to a real premiere, with a special performance of "Anna Ascends," will give a special performance of a brand new and hilarious unsolved Owen Davis drama at the Plymouth Theatre at a matinee next Tuesday.

"The Wedding Ring" is the name of Mr. Davis' latest play. It is said to be the melodramatic story of a woman who married a man to save his brother, whom she loved, from going to prison.

As in the case of "Anna Ascends," Mr. Brady selected Boston as the first city to pass judgment on the new play, believing that the judgment of local theatregoers is superior to those of any other city in the country.

Marie Goff will have a prominent part, as will Edith Shayne, Marion Berry, Robert Harrison, Kenneth McKenna and the rest.

FEB. 16—"39 EAST"

Coming to the Wilbur Theatre on Monday evening February 16, will be Rachel Crothers' captivating comedy, "39 East," which ran for seven months in New York city. The Boston engagement will be favored with the presence of Henry Hull and Constance Binney.

"THE ROYAL VAGABOND"

A long awaited attraction will come to the Colonial Theatre Monday evening, February 16, when Cohan and Harris will present what they term their greatest musical triumph, "The Royal Vagabond." Through an entire year in New York this musical attraction won unstinted favor.

CHICAGO OPERA

Great interest centres in the engagement of the Chicago Opera Association which comes to the Boston Opera House for two weeks beginning March 1st. The repertoire of the visiting company will include many of its most successful operas, a specific ballet performance of one hour, and three of popular novelties, notably "Aphrodite," "L'Heure Espagnole" (The Spanish Hour) and the Puccini Triology of three one-act operas.

An interesting feature of the engagement will be the first appearances here of Tito Schipa, the great Italian tenor, Carlo Galeffi, the Italian baritone, and Edward Johnson, the distinguished American tenor, who is known all over Italy as Edyardo di Giovanni. Of equal interest will be the return of the Italian tenor, Alessandro Bonci, John O'Sullivan, the Irish-French tenor, and Titta Ruffo, noted as the world's greatest baritone. Andreas Pavley and Serge Oukrainski, premiers dansuers etoiles, noted for the extraordinary originality of their dancing, will appear in a number of performances with the opera corps de ballet and will have as their assisting artists Miles. Ludmilla, Ledova, Arnold, Nemeroff, Shermont and Grenaoll. The ballets in "La Gioconda," "Aphrodite" and "Carmen" are among those said to be sensationally beautiful.

The personnel of the organization has been a cause for as much rejoicing as its repertoire. With Amelita Galli-Curci, Mary Garden, Rosa Raisa, Florence Macbeth and Yvonne Gall among its soprano stars, a lengthy list of tenors that includes Tito Schipa, Edward Johnson, Forrest Lamont, Alessandro Bonci, Alessandro Dolci and Edmond Warnery and such baritones as Titta Ruffo, Giacomo Galeffi, Hector Dufranne and Alfred Maguenat, to name only a part of the artists the list of names has been of a kind to challenge comparison with any opera company in the world.

BATTLE FIELDS OF FRANCE

After many requests, not only from those who heard it, but also from those who wish to hear it again, Hurton Holmes will repeat once more what many have characterized as one of the finest lectures of his repertoire —"The Battle Fields of France." Mr. Holmes' vivid and startling pictures, both still and motion, portray the frightful destruction of war, and bring home to everyone a personal sense of the horrors suffered through four long years of war by the French and Belgians, but the powerful appeal shown—the joyful demonstrations at the first sight of Old Glory and the wonderful recuperating results attained by nature.

SELWYN'S PARK SQUARE THEATRE

"Tea for Three," an angle on the triangle, continues to captivate Boston theatregoers at Selwyn's Park Square Theatre. It is by far the most comprehensive and delightful bit of dramatic writing done by Roi Cooper Megrue.

"THE GIRL IN THE LIMOUSINE," PLYMOUTH

"The Girl in the Limousine" comes to the Plymouth for a brief visit beginning Monday afternoon, February 23, Washington's Birthday.

LAST WEEK "TOO MANY HUSBANDS," WILBUR

"Too Many Husbands" will begin its last week at the Wilbur Theatre Monday evening. This delightful farce comedy has been highly successful in Boston.

McISAAC says that

"THE OUTRAGEOUS MRS. PALMER" offers Mary Young in the biggest role of her career. The supporting company is the best ever assembled by John Craig for any production. It's a play worth seeing.—Arlington.

"THE ROSE OF CHINA" is a dainty operetta with exquisite sets, pretty girls and clever comedians, including Frank MacIntyre, Oscar Shaw and Cecil Cunningham. Shubert.

GEORGE ARLISS in "Jacques Duval" begins his last week. An unusual theme for a play and offering Arliss a chance at a new sort of character. Hollis.

"TOO MANY HUSBANDS," Maugham's clever farce with its English troupe, including Lawrence Grossmith and Estelle Winwood enters its last week. Wilbur.

"TEA FOR THREE," Roi Megrue's particularly brilliant tea table comedy superbly played by Arthur Byron, Laura Hope Crews and Fred Perry. Park Square.

"AT 9:45," the Owen Davis melodrama of thrills and surprises, continues to attract at the Plymouth.

"SHE'S A GOOD FELLOW," Jerome Kern's latest musical offering, has enjoyed prosperity at the Colonial, but remains for only one more week.

J. DEMPSEY BUCKS THE LINE

Football field chalk lines are as familiar as the ropes of the squared circle to Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion fighter. The conqueror of Jess Willard surprised his admirers by showing his football prowess recently while appearing as the hero of the strenuously smashing Pathe film serial, "Daredevil Jack."

Clad in football armor, Champion Dempsey seemed a giant when he appeared on the gridiron at the University of California. The champ was instructed to take his position in a line-up of husky football players from the university, and a practice scrimmage was bordered before the cameraman began to grind out the film. Expecting that the big boxer was a novice at the game his opponents in the scrimmage confidently smiled when they braced themselves to meet his rush. But Dempsey proved within a few instants that it was not his first experience at bucking the line.

With all his heavy, muscular bulk he crashed against the formation before him, spilling and hurling the college players in all directions. Individual players realized the folly of opposing him alone so mass plays were quickly improvised, solely for Dempsey's benefit.

Members of the Harvard football team, in California for the New Year's game with the University of Oregon, were likewise on the field and expressed their astonishment with the invincible plunging abilities of the ring champion.

How Can She Explain?

If you found your wife doing a dizzy dance in negligee before a young man in her boudoir, what would you do—especially if said wife happened to hail from Russia, and might logically be suspected of Bolshevistic instincts, whatever they are?

That is one of the many startling questions which arises during the action of "Do With One Another," the latest Paramount-Artcraft superproduction, to be shown at the Park Theatre beginning Monday. In this the first George Fitzmaurice production, arranged by Olda Bergere from Michael Arlen's play of the same name, daring situations follow one another in the most startling fashion.

Some Actor.

William Courtleigh, who plays "John Pendleton" to Mary Pickford's Pollyanna, in the delightful film dramatization of Mrs. Eleanor H. Porter's famous "glad book" now being presented at Tremont Temple by Nathan Gordon, is a great popular favorite with Boston audiences. In 1905 Mr. Courtleigh, regarded as one of the finest actors on the spoken stage, headed a stock company in Boston.

Few actors appearing in the silent drama can boast the wealth of experience that Talented Theatrical has had. In his early days—he was widely known as an amateur actor before he was twenty—he appeared with Fanny Davenport, with Augustin Daly's famous stock company, with Ada Rehan, with Helen Dauvray, and with Wilton Lackaye. He succeeded Robert Hilliard in "Blue Jeans" and played the leading role in "The Old Kentucky." He made an extended tour with Margaret Mather, playing Shakespearian roles, and was a member of Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Theatre Stock Company, succeeding James K. Hackett in the leading role of "The Princess and the Butterfly."

Dean's Joy in Life.

"Some folks get a great deal of excitement from picking up a poker hand to see what they have drawn," but for me, the real pleasure in life is in trying out new climbing and jumping stunts just to see what will happen to me." This is how Douglas Fairbanks says he feels when he was questioned about some of the reckless stunts he does in his latest production, "When the Clouds Roll By," which will be shown at the Scollay Square Olympia next week.

Liked Nickel Movies.

"Yes," says Alice Lake, with no trace of shame, "I used to like the nickel movies, where there were sheriffs with wicked, long mustaches, and adventuresses who made the wonderful hero think the heroine was the girl of his dreams, and wielding cowboys and everything. I used to wish that some day I'd get a chance to be in one myself, and now I have." Of course that kind of picture has passed, yet I feel somehow I'll never get the thrill again they gave me. The thrill of my first actual realization of getting into screen work, too, was that I started in comedy."

Miss Lake in "Should a Woman Tell," will be seen at Gordon's Olympia next week.

Mary Plays Judy.

Mary Miles Minter, the dainty little screen star who captured the hearts of children and grown folks alike and surpassed the role of Judy in "Judy of Rogues Harbor" with the one secured for a starring vehicle for Miss Minter after the book, of the same name, had proved a tremendous success. In fact, when reading the book the first thought which occurred to her faithful devotees was: "What an ideal role for Mary Miles Minter!" And this is a source of great delight when they learned of the fulfilment of this thought.

"TAKE IT FROM ME"

"Take It From Me" is now passed the third week at the time it comes to the Boston Opera House for two weeks, beginning Monday, February 16. Thereafter the Studebaker Theatre, Chicago, where it had a run of six months, will be the scene of a run of five months at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, New York.

The cast is exceptionally and unusually well balanced. Zoe Barnett is the prime donna, and associated with her are Alice Hills, Fred Hillebrand, Douglass Leavitt, Tito Merrison, Helen Gardiner, Arline Gardiner, Edgar Gardiner, Harry Burnham, William Balfour, James Dyrenforth, Ruth Lockwood and the "Beautiful Miss Me Girls."

JOEL YOUNG in "THE OUTRAGEOUS MRS. PALMER" at the ARLINGTON.
CARLOTTE GREENWOOD and WILLIAM KENNEDY in "LINGER LONGER LETTY" at the MAJESTIC.
MARY MILES MINTER in "JUDY OF ROGUES HARBOR."
ARLINE GARDINER in "TAKE IT FROM ME" at the BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

The Play You Want to See

"The OUTRAGEOUS MRS. PALMER"

"The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer" is bright, ingenious and unique, mingling of comedy and pathos."—Edward H. Crosby, Boston Post.
"Vivid and original. One of the most interesting plays I have seen in a long time. Between you and me it is much better play than 'Common Clay.'"—F. J. Melanze, Boston American.
"Excellent acting."—F. E. G.
"Miss Young emerged as a whimsical favorite of men and women, quick and cruel in repartee—delightfully emotional."—J. B. A., Boston Transcript.
"Henry Gribble's Play, 'The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer,' is a winner for Craig. Beautifully staged. A personal triumph for John Craig and Mary Young. At the rate it is going we expect to see 'Mrs. Palmer' on Broadway soon. Mr. Craig seems to have found a second 'Common Clay.'"—S. C., Boston Record.
"Miss Young's comedy is scintillating, while her transitions from nervous irritability and downright rage, to the fascination which the star exerts at will over those around her is admirably done."
"The distinguished and appreciative audience received the play with every possible demonstration of approval. A well-constructed piece of work of the utmost interest throughout."—Boston Globe.
"Holds the intense interest with its vital, human portrait of patriotism, love and sacrifice."—Boston Traveler.

This Day in History—February 7, 1920

THIS is the anniversary of the birth, in 1812, of Charles Dickens, one of the most famous of English novelists. Dickens did much to correct many glaring abuses of his time. As a writer he ranks below Thackeray, whose contemporary he was, but some of his novels—like David Copperfield—are assured of a lasting place.

Workers' Wages in Japan

THE average wage for an unskilled Japanese male laborer today is 25 cents. Besides the daily rates, however, yearly bonuses are given of a month's wages. The working hours may be given generally as seventy per week, the amount of work produced is about one-half of that of an average American.

April Folly

By Cynthia Stockley

A Brilliant New Film Romance With Marion Davies

Watch for This Story in Motion Pictures

"April Folly," soon to be seen in leading motion picture theatres, is a Cosmopolitan production, released through Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as a Paramount-Artcraft picture, direction of Robert Z. Leonard.

The Story to Date

Lady Diana Sandilands, on her way to Liverpool for Africa, eludes her chaperone and, meeting on the train a young and pretty governess, April Poole, also going to Cape Town, persuades her to exchange identities. April appears on the liner as Lady Diana, and the latter for her whims and flirting earns the title of "April Fool." April meets a man named Sarle who interests her, but she expostulates with Diana for making her name (April Poole) a thing to be sneered at. Diana promises to do better, but the reputation she has made sticks to her, and the women passengers snub her.

"I don't believe it. It can't be true."

Mrs. Stanislaw had reason to think that she intended to commit suicide tonight; and when she did not come to bed by 2 o'clock, she thought it her duty to inform the captain, who is, of course, bound to search the ship.

"It can't be true! I don't believe it!" repeated April mechanically, but all the time her heart was in terror, remembering Diana's pale looks and the news she had heard tonight of Bellew's marriage. Had he told Diana then, and was this the result?

All at once it become impossible to sit still any longer. She must know the truth. She jumped up, searched feverishly for a cloak to put on, and, pulling the steward-ess with her, hurried on deck. But after a few steps they came to a standstill, for the crowd following the captain had suddenly and curiously broken up and separated before the door of one of the deck-cabins.

Men and women who a moment before had been clustering and whispering agitatedly together were now all rung apart, apparently by intent on reaching their own cabins in the quickest time possible. For one horrible moment April thought it was some tragic discovery that was scattering them, but a moment later she realized that tragedy had gone from the air.

The deck was flooded with electric light, and people's faces could plainly be seen. Many expressions were written there, but none of pity or sorrow. The men, for the most part, looked embarrassed; the women's expressions varied from frozen, hauteur to scornful rage. They looked like people who had been bitterly wronged by some lying tale. The one predominating emotion shared by all seemed to be an intense desire to escape from the scene.

A Parting Shot

In less than two minutes not a soul was left on the deck save the dazed and astounded April. She retained nothing of what she saw. It was all about, why, without visible reason, the search had come to such a sudden end, and what could be the meaning of the phrase Mrs. Stanislaw had flung at her as she passed.

"The April fool has surpassed herself!"

A sickening apprehension crept over the girl. That Diana was not overboard seemed certain; but what new folly had she committed? As if in answer to the gloomy query, the lights were once more switched out, and a dense, vapory grayness took possession of the ship. It was that still, small hour when the yellowing east ends pallor to the night without dispersing its darkness.

Then two things happened. The door of that cabin before which the crowd had so mysteriously congregated opened very softly, and through the aperture stole forth a woman's figure. For a swift moment the light from within rested on yellow hair and gleaming blue satin; then the door closed, and the figure became part of the stealing dimness which was neither night nor morning. But, April, who stood in its path, had seen and recognized.

"Diana!" she cried.

The other girl stood stock still. Her face showed ghostly in the grayness. She peered at April, clutching at her arm and whispering.

"For God's sake, take me to your cabin!"

A Mystery to April

They crept down the deck like a pair of thieves, hardly breathing till they were behind the locked door. Without looking at her, April knew that there was trouble to meet. She remembered the faces of the other women, and the instinct to protect a fellow creature against the mob rose in her.

"Tell me what it is. I'll help you fight it out."

But Diana had flung herself down with defiant air on the sofa.

"Don't you know? Weren't you one of the hounds on my trail?" she demanded, in a high-pitched whisper.

April looked at her steadily.

"The whole thing is an absolute mystery to me. I know nothing, except that first you were missing and then, apparently, 'they found you.'"

"Yes; in Geoffroy Bellew's cabin." The April fool had indeed surpassed herself! April blanched, but she took the blow standing. After all, she had been as great a fool as the girl sitting there, for she, too, had handed over her good name into the careless hands of another; had sold her reputation for a song—a song that had lasted seventeen days, but seemed now in the act of becoming a dirge.

"Do you mind telling me what happened, so that I know exactly where we stand and what there is to be done?"

Diana laughed.

"There is nothing to be done." April forgave her the laugh, because it was not composed of merriment or any elements of joyousness. "I went to Geoffroy's cabin, because we had things to talk over, and it seemed the only place where we could get away from prying eyes. Somehow, I stayed on and on, got realizing it was so late—and then—and then"—she began to stammer; defiance left her—"then that awful knocking—those faces staring in—all those brutes of women!" She covered her eyes with her hands and broke down utterly. "My God, I am done for!"

April thought so, too, but seemed to her they were both done for, but there was not much help in saying so. Diana's confession terrified her, and she saw that her own future at the Cape was knocked as flat as a house of cards that is demolished by the wayward hand of a child. Yet, at the moment, her principal feeling was one of compassion for the girl on the sofa, who alternately laughed and covered her eyes, and once, with a pitiful attempt at bravado, made attempt-ing to light a cigarette with hands that shook like aspen leaves.

"I suppose it was that rat Stanislaw who started the search for me."

In a Panic

"It appears that she got into a panic when you did not return to your cabin, and went and told the captain she feared you were overboard."

"That she-fiend! Much she cared if I was at the bottom of the sea! She had pried out where I was, and that was her crafty way of advertising it to the whole ship."

"I believe you are right," said April, slowly, "though it is hard to understand how anyone could do anything so studiedly cruel."

"Cruel! She is a fiend, I tell you!" cried Diana. "One of those women who have nothing left in their natures but hatred for those who are still young and pretty. I realized long ago that she would ruin my reputation if she could, but I did not give her credit for so much cleverness."

"Well, at any rate, she is not so clever as she thinks," April said dryly, "for she hasn't ruined your reputation. After all—only mine."

Diana started; terror came into her eyes.

"My God, April! You don't mean to give me away?"

April knew very well what she meant to do. She had tired of "the triumph and the roses and the wine," and the bill had been presented. Even though it left her bankrupt and disgraced, she was going to honor that bill; but she could not start finding out what point of view was held by Diana as to similar obligations.

Who Worshipped at the Wrong Shrine

When a Girl Marries

New Serial by Ann Lisle

"HE was running away, the darling boy!" she cried, looking up in wide-eyed simplicity at Val. "Packed and ready to go. I saw him tip-toe into my room with a note and then climb down here to get out the side entrance. And I followed him. You know it was my fault the canoe upset today, but he risked his life to save me. Then like the modest dear he is, he didn't want me to think I owed it to him to marry him after he'd saved me. I'm older than Neal—and richer—in experience and—and having this place; but no one—NO ONE—can ever call Neal a fortune-hunter because I'm the lucky one. He was running away and I made him stay."

For a moment I was so astounded I couldn't breathe to speak.

"You're very wonderful," commented Val dryly. "I congratulate you both, and I'm sure, Miss Mason, that no one will ever dream of calling Mr. Hyland a fortune-hunter."

As she spoke a look flashed between them, I knew Evvy wasn't done with Val.

"Thank you for explaining to us, Evvy," I said, pulling myself together.

Then I kissed her on the lips she turned up to me, and I caught Neal in my arms, murmuring over him with lips that longed to protest.

Tell Them All

"I'm going in to tell them all now," cried Evvy after a moment or two. "I want them all to know how happy we are. We are happy, aren't we dearest?"

Neal stooped and drew Evvy toward him. Then he looked almost defiantly at Val and me.

"Very happy," he said.

"And to think I had to stop my proud darling almost by force from running away from me," laughed Evvy huskily.

"West wasn't in the office today. He's out of town investigating a new proposition. So I couldn't speak to him about that stock transaction you accuse him of," said Jim, crumpling the paper he had been reading and flinging it down beside the couch where he was stretched out, "I think I'll telephone Phoebe and see if she'll jump in a taxi and spin over here to give me the straight of that story."

"Wait, Jim," I said, rising and stopping automatically to pick up the paper. "Why do you want to ask Phoebe about it?" I continued, straightening up, well pleased that I had an excuse for my crimson face.

"Why do I want to ask Phoebe?" repeated Jim, starting up impatiently. "to get the straight of it, of course."

"Don't you think I've given you the straight of it?" I asked breathlessly.

"Land—sa!" chuckled Jim. "I don't think you've got West's number at all. And I want this story from a witness who isn't so bloomin' prejudiced."

"Jim!" I cried. "You doubt my word! You doubt my word! Now, listen! I gave you that story just as Phoebe told it to me. But I had to plead for permission to tell. She doesn't want to go over it and accuse about it again with you. But that isn't the point. If you go to her—to ask her if I told you the truth, Jim—I'll never forgive you as long as we both live. I couldn't bear that. Oh! The humiliation of having you think I could lie!"

Jim Hates a Scene

"Anne, don't make a scene, for mercy's sake," began Jim impatiently. Then he limped across the room to where I stood with back turned, and caught me by my trembling shoulders and turned me to face him. He put one strong hand under my chin, and raised it so that my humbled eyes looked straight into his. I felt the tears start, but I forced them back while I waited in breathless moment for him to take me in his arms and soothe away all the doubts and differences there.

He didn't, though. Instead he used words, and they pushed us apart again.

"Don't whimper," he said, "I won't call Phoebe. But you've got to let me get West's side of it when he comes back right?"

"That's exactly what I think you ought to do," I said, looking up at Jim with great satisfaction. "I don't think he'll lie to you—at least not very successfully when you look at him so keenly."

"No, I guess he won't," said Jim, dropping his hands from my shoulders and dawdling back to his place on the couch with an air of indifference that was like a dash of ice water in my face.

The days of our romance seemed dead. I hadn't it in my power any longer to kindle Jim's spirit nor yet to stimulate his mind. As he settled himself among the pillows I rose and went over to his side, running my fingers through his hair.

"That comfy. Good old Anne—stroke the animal and he'll be in a nice temper," said Jim contentedly. I wasn't content, and I longed to tell him so, to ask him what magic Valerie Cosby had to darken his eyes to deep pools when he looked at her. They had twinkled for Evvy, and softened to tenderness for Betty, but since my own engagement days I had never seen him look at a woman as he now answered Valerie Cosby's appeal eyes. If only he'd reach up with strong wrists and pull me down to his side! If only he'd put his arms about me and hold my lips to his.

All About Neal

But Jim lay passive, contented, with his eyes shut and his dark lashes shadowing his cheeks. And I stood stroking his hair, acting because he wanted nothing more of me, and trying to dismiss the fear that he might be thinking of Valerie Cosby even while my hand lay on his head.

Suddenly he opened his eyes and spoke with startling abruptness:

"Anne, that kid brother of yours is doing mighty well for himself. Little Evvy's an only child with doddering old folks who don't count and a tidy little fortune she inherited from her Grandmother Mason. Pretty soft for Neal—pretty soft!"

I drew my hand away from Jim's hair as if it had been burned.

The Cinema Murder

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

A Mystery Film Serial of Love and Intrigue in England and New York

"THAT'S a play writing trick, I suppose," Sylvanus Power answered, "stringing out your sentences as pat as butter. It's no my way. There's the truth always at the back of my head, and the words ready to fit it, but they come as they please."

"It seem to have noticed that," Philip observed.

"What sort of a man are you, anyway?" the other demanded, his heavy eyebrows suddenly lowering, his wonderful, keen eyes riveted upon Philip. "Can I buy you, I wonder, or threaten you?"

"That rather depends upon what it is you want from me."

"I want you to leave this country and never set foot in it again. That's what I want of you. I want you to get back to your London slums and write your stuff there and have it played in your own poky little theatres. I want you out of New York, and I want you out quick."

"Then I am afraid," Philip regretted, "that we are wasting time. I haven't the least intention of leaving New York."

"Well, we'll go through the rigmarole," Power continued gruffly. "We've got to understand one another. There's my cheque book in that safe. A million dollars if you leave this country—alone—within twenty-four hours, and stay away for the rest of your life."

Philip raised his eyebrows. He was lounging slightly against the desk.

"I should have no use for a million dollars, Mr. Power," he said, "if I had. I should not take it from you, and further, the conditions you suggest are absurd."

"Bribery no good, eh?" Mr. Power observed. "What about threats? There was a man once who wrote a letter to a certain woman, which I found. I killed him a few days afterwards. There was a sort of a scuffle, but it was murder, right enough. I am nearer the door than you are, and I should say about three times as strong. How would a fight suit you?"

Sarle's hand was in his overcoat pocket.

"Not particularly," he answered. "Besides, I wouldn't be fair. You see, I am armed and you're not."

Drew Revolver

As though for curiosity, he drew from his pocket the little revolver which Honeybrook had slipped into it. Power looked at it and shrugged his shoulders.

"We'll leave that out, then, for the moment," he said. "Now listen to me! I'm off on another tack now. Eight years ago I met Elizabeth Dalstan. I was thirty-eight years old then—I am forty-six now. You young men nowadays go through your life, they tell me, with a woman on either hand. At that time, I was content with one in a score of passions, go through the same old channels once a year or something like it.

"I was married when I was twenty-four, I got married to lay my hands on the first ten thousand dollars I needed. My wife left me fifteen years ago. You may have read that. She was a stage-keeper's daughter then. She has a flat in Paris now, a country house in England, a villa at Monte Carlo and another at Florence. She likes her life, I live mine. She's the only woman I've ever spoken a civil word to until I met Elizabeth Dalstan, or since."

Philip was interested despite his violent antipathy to the man.

"A singular record of fidelity," he remarked suavely.

"I would drop that play-acting talk and speak like a man, I'd do you better," Sylvanus Power continued. "There it is in plain words. I met Elizabeth Dalstan, we quarrelled and she left me, and while she lived with me I thought no more of a woman than a cat. When she went, I thought I'd done with the sex. Elizabeth Dalstan happened along, and I found I hadn't even begun. Eight years ago we met. I offered her at once everything I could offer. Nothing doing. We don't need to tell one another that she isn't that sort. I went off and left her, spent a Winter in Siberia, and came home by China. I suppose there were women there and in Paris.

"I was there for a month. I didn't see them. Then America. Elizabeth Dalstan was still touring, not doing much good for herself. I had crossed for a time, tried my luck once more—no go. Then I went back to Europe, offered my wife ten million and an income for a divorce. It didn't suit her, so I came back again. The third time I found Elizabeth discouraged. If ever a man found a woman at the right time, I did. She is ambitious—Lord knows why! I hate acting and the theatre and everything to do with them. However, I tried a new move. I built that theatre in New York—there isn't another place like it in the world—and offered it to her as a birthday present. Then she began to hesitate.

"Look here," Philip broke in, "I know all this. I know everything you have told me, and everything you can tell me. What about it?"

"What have you got to say to me?"

"This," Sylvanus Power declared, striking the desk with his clenched fist. "I have only had one consolation all the time I have been waiting—there has been no other man. Elizabeth isn't that sort. Each time I was separated and came back, I just looked at her and I knew. That's why I have been patient. That is why I haven't insisted upon my debt being paid. You understand that?"

"I hear what you say."

Took Whiskey

Power crossed the room, helped himself to whiskey, and returned to his place with the tumbler in his hand. There was a brief silence. A little clock upon the mantelpiece struck two. The street sounds outside had ceased save for the hoot of an occasional taxicab. Philip was conscious of a burning desire to get away. This man, this great lump of power and success, standing like a colossus in his wonderful home, infuriated him. That a man should live who thought he had a right such as he claimed, was maddening.

"Well," Power proceeded, setting down the tumbler empty, "you won't be bought. How am I going to get you out of the way?"

"You can't do it," Philip asserted. "I am going tomorrow morning to Elizabeth, and I am going to pray her to marry me at once."

Power swayed for a single moment upon his feet. The teeth gleamed out like tusks between his slightly parted lips. His great arm was outstretched. In burning muzzles showed against the dimness of his dinner coat. His chest was heaving.

"If you do it," he shouted, "I'll close the theatre tomorrow and sack every one in it. I'll buy any theatre in New York where you try to present your namby-pamby play. I'll buy every manager she goes to for an engagement, every newspaper that says a word of praise of any work of yours. I tell you I'll stand behind the scenes and pull the strings which shall bring you and her to the knowledge of what failure and want mean. I'll give up the great things in life, I'll devote every dollar I have, every thought of my brain, every atom of my power, to bringing you two face to face with misery. That's all you get hands off you. I mean't do that."

Philip shrugged his shoulders.

"If I put you in a play," he said, "which is where you really belong, people would find you humorous. Your threats don't affect me at all, Mr. Power. Elizabeth can choose."

Power leaned over to the switch and turned on an electric light above Philip's head.

"Blast you, let me look at you!" he thundered. "You're a white-faced, sickly creature to call yourself a man! Can't you see this thing as I see it? You're the sort that's had women, and plenty of them. Another will do for you, and, my God, she is the only one I've looked at—I, Sylvanus Power, mind—I, who have ruled fate and ruled men all my life—I want her! Don't be a fool! Get out of my path. I've crushed a hundred such men as you in my day."

Philip took up his hat.

"We are wasting time," he observed. "You are a cruder person than I thought you, Mr. Power. I am sorry for you, if that's anything."

"Sorry for me? You"

The Valley of the Giants

By Peter B. Kyne

THIS amendment to the original motion met with the unqualified approval of the mayor, as he was careful to announce for the benefit of the other members of the Solid Four. The fact of the matter was, however, that he was afraid to oppose Yates in such a simple matter through fear that Yates might grow cantankerous and carry his troubles to the Sequoia Sentinel—a base trick he had been known to do i the past. After explaining the advisability of keeping secret for the present the fact that a thirty-day franchise had been granted, His Honor, with the consent of the maker of the original motion and the second thereof, submitted the amended motion to a vote, which was carried unanimously.

At 11:30 Thursday morning, therefore, young Henry Poundstone, having worked the greater part of the previous night preparing the deeds, delivered both deeds and franchise to Buck Ogilvy at the latter's hotel. It was with difficulty that the latter could conceal his tremendous amazement when Henry casually handed him the franchise. True, he had slipped that fake telegram among the contracts as bait for Henry and his father, but in his wildest flights of fancy he had not looked for them to swallow hook, line and sinker.

Henry smirked. "My dad's the engineer," he said bluntly. "If thirty days ain't enough time, me and I'll get you thirty days more. And in the mean time nobody knows a thing about this little deal. What's more, they won't know. I figured Colonel Pennington might try to block you at that crossing so I—"

Buck Ogilvy extended his hand in benediction and let it drop lightly on Henry Poundstone's thin shoulder. Henry quivered with anticipation under that gentle accolade and swallowed his heart while the great Ogilvy made a portentous announcement.

"My dear Poundstone," he said earnestly, "I am not a man to forget clever work. At the proper time I shall—" He smiled his radiant smile. "You understand, of course, that I am speaking for myself and can make you no firm promises. However—" He smiled again. "All I have to say is that you'll do!"

"Thank you," said Henry Poundstone, Junior. "Thank you ever so much.

CHAPTER XXVII.

AN experience extending over a very active business career of thirty years had convinced Colonel Seth Pennington of the futility of racking his brains in vain speculation over mysteries. In his day he had been interested in some small public-service corporations, which is tantamount to saying that he knew peanut politics and had learned that the very best way to fight the devil is with fire. Frequently he had found it of great interest and profit to him to know exactly how certain men spent their time and his money, a nd since h was a very busy man himself, naturally he had to delegate somebody else to procure this information for him.

When, therefore, the Northern Californian Oregon Railroad commenced to encroach on the Colonel's time-appropriation for sleep, he realized that there was but one way in which to conserve his rest and that was by engaging to frthom the mystery for him a specialist in the unravelling of mysteries. In times gone by, the Colonel had found a certain national detective agency an extremely efficient aid to well-known commercial agencies, and to these tried and true subordinates he turned now for explicit and satisfying information anent the Northern California Outrage!

When the operatives reported, the Colonel's orders were brief and explicit. "I want to know all about a man named Buchanan Ogilvy, who is up north somewhere procuring rights of way for the Northern California Oregon Railroad. Find him. Get up with him in the morning and put him to bed at night. Report to me daily."

Buck was readily located in the country north of Arcata, and one of the operatives actually procured a job as chainman with his surveying gang, while the other kept Ogilvy and his secretary under surveillance. Their reports, however, yielded the Colonel nothing until the first day of Buck's return to Sequoia, when the following written report caused the Colonel to sit up and take notice. It was headed: "Report of Operative No. 41," and it read:

Ogilvy in his room until 12 o'clock noon. At 12:05 entered dining room. Having at 1 p. m. and proceeding direct to office of Cardigan Redwood Lumber Company. Operative took post behind a lumber-pile at side of office so as to command view of interior of office. From manner of greeting accorded Ogilvy by Bryce Cardigan, operative is of opinion they had not met before. Ogilvy remained in Cardigan's private office half an hour, spent another half-hour conversing with young lady in general office. Young lady a brunette. O. then returned to Hotel Sequoia, where he wrote several letters in writing room. At 3 p. m. called to telephone. At 3:02 p. m. left hurriedly for Cardigan Redwood Lumber Company's office. Entered private office without waiting for he announced. Emerged at 3:12, walking slowly and in deep thought. At 3:15 and Cedar streets stopped suddenly, snapped his fingers and started walking rapidly, in the manner of one who has arrived at a decision. At 3:24 entered the telephone building and placed a long-distance call. Operative standing at counter, close by heard him place call with the girl on duty. He asked for the Cardigan Redwood Lumber Company in San Francisco.

Concluded his conversation at 3:33 and proceeded to the city hall, entering the Mayor's office at 3:42 and emerging at 4:10. He then returned to the Hotel Sequoia and sat in the lobby until handed a telegram at 4:40; whereupon he entered the telephone booth and talked to someone, emerging at 4:43 to go to his room. He returned at 4:46 and hurried to the law office of Henry Poundstone, Junior, in the Cardigan Block. He was with Poundstone until 4:58, when he returned leisurely to the Hotel Sequoia, carrying a small leather grip. He also had this grip when he entered Poundstone's office.

Arrived at the hotel at 5:03 and went to his room. At 6:45 he entered a public automobile in front of the hotel and was driven to No. 816 Elm street. The brunette young lady who works in the Cardigan Redwood Lumber Company's office emerged presently and entered the car, which then proceeded to No. 28 Redwood Boulevard, where the brunette young lady alighted and entered the house. She returned at 7 sharp, accompanied by a young lady whom she introduced to O. All three were then driven to the Canton restaurant at 423 Third street and escorted to a reserved table in one of the screened-off semi-private rooms along the right side of the dining room. At 7:15 Bryce Cardigan entered the restaurant and was escorted by the waiter to the table occupied by O. and party.

At 9:30 entire party left restaurant and entered a Napier car driven by a half-breed Indian whom the second young lady hailed as George. O. and the brunette young lady were dropped at 846 Elm street while Cardigan and the other young lady proceeded directly to No. 28 Redwood Boulevard. After aiding the lady to alight, Cardigan talked with her a few minutes at the gate, then bade her good night and after waiting until she disappeared inside the front door, returned to the automobile and was driven to his home, while the chauffeur George ran the car into the Cardigan garage.

Upon returning to Hotel Sequoia, found O. in hotel bar. Saw him to bed at 10 sharp.

MARKET IS LED BY STEELS

Trading Is Quiet and Price Range Narrow for Most Issues

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at the close, prices rolling near the highest. Some issues reached the top in the last fifteen minutes. Steels were the leaders. U. S. Steel was above and below par during the morning, but finished with a gain.

Among strongest issues at the close were International Paper, Baldwin, American Woolen, American Bosch, Fan American, International Corporation, Texas Co, Chandler, Atlantic Gulf and U. S. Rubber. They were up from one to three points, showing weakest losses were Columbia Pacific, General Electric, Texas & Pacific, White Motor and Pierce Arrow.

The market was active, transaction totalling 477,100 shares for the day and 1,156,400 for the week. Bond sales amounted to $9,174,000 for the day and to $14,440,000 for the week.

In the foreign exchange market, demand sterling opened two cents lower, at $3.51 to $3.54 on one half, never sold at a new record high price, advancing 16 to 68 on counter.

MOVED UPWARD AND WAVERED.

Covering of shorts which sent prices up at the previous close was resumed at the opening today, traders as usual being inclined to even up on commitments at a week-end. After the start a recessional took which was felt throughout the list and took stocks downward steadily for thirty minutes. U. S. Steel began with a trifling gain, but was below par within five minutes. Before the end of an hour it had recovered and was moved unchanged from Friday's final price. Steels, oils and motors were the most active shares, with Baldwin an active equipment, U. S. Rubber the feature among tires, and Southern Pacific leading rails. The carriers were strong as a class. The week Sun in this chain was Canadian Pacific. General Electric receded four points before mid-morning, while General Motors, Mexican Petroleum, Texas Co., Middle States and White Motor showed material losses. Atlantic Gulf was strong, opening with a six-point advance, but failing to hold it all. Early trading was of good volume.

Cause of an hour the market had improved and the tone verged on being strong. Most of the leaders were showing gains.

WESTERN HOUSES SOLD STOCK.

The early reaction was blamed upon the West, houses with connections of that section handling many orders to sell. For months the West was the backbone of the bull movement. Sentiment has suffered a reversal in the character of purchasing. It was supposed that liquidation of stocks had run its course when it became recurrent in the West. One explanation is that it and the South are the only sections where small interests are still supplied with stocks. In the Middle States and the East such holdings are by no means numerous. Nothing new developed in regard to money. The 19 per cent call rate holds over from Monday. It is figured that loans outstanding at present in the Wall Street district do not total more than $1,000,000,000. In the Autumn they were estimated to aggregate $1,750,000,000.

Production of Coke

During the week ended January 24 coke production was estimated at 241,938 tons, an increase of 2,329 tons over the total for the preceding week.

Cuban Sugar Shipments

Although exports were curtailed by strikes in Cuba, weekly shipments of sugar from that island to North Atlantic ports in this country have averaged about 85,000 tons since the middle of January.

Cotton Market

New York, Feb. 7.—The cotton market opened a little firmer at an advance of about twelve points, due to moderate buying by Liverpool and some week-end covering. Sentiment remained bearish, however, because of the foreign exchange situation, a lessened demand for the finer staples in the South and fine weather throughout the belt. At the end of twenty minutes the market was quiet and two to three points net lower. Opening prices were: March, 34.70; May, 32.50; July, 30.00; October, 28.50.

The market closed firm, prices being: February, 36.10 bid; March, 34.35 to 34.40; April, 33.15 bid; May, 32.65 to 32.70; June, 31.35 bid; July, 30.70 to 30.80; August, 29.75 bid; September, 29.20 bid; October, 28.97 bid; November, 28.50 bid; December, 28.12 bid. Spot, 36c; up 20 points.

ASK CONFERENCE IN DEAN CASE

Jaffrey Selectmen Write Governor for Appointment Next Week

East Jaffrey, N. H., Feb. 7.—Owing to work on their Annual town report, the selectmen of this town were compelled to defer until next week plans for a conference with Governor John H. Bartlett, at Concord, in relation to the murder of Dr. William Kendrick Dean.

They sent this letter to Governor Bartlett:

"Your Excellency,

"Can we have an appointment with you in Concord during the week of February 9-14, with Attorney-General Tuttle and Mr. Pickard. This is in regard to the Dean case.

"For the honor of New Hampshire, we are, etc., respectfully yours,

"WILLIAM F. COOLIDGE, chairman.
"FRANK H. DEAN.
"EDWARD C. BOYNTON."

At that conference Attorney Harry N. Bateman, of Keene, acting as counsel for the town of Jaffrey, will submit a bill of facts to support their plea that special counsel be appointed by Governor Bartlett to prosecute the case.

Among the charges will be the general charge that the Dean case was badly handled from the start and that grievous mistakes in the homicide was not followed out by County Solicitor Roy M. Pickard of Keene.

Governor Bartlett will be told that proper medical records were not kept in the Dean case.

That a full autopsy was not made until five months after the murder.

That the selectmen of Jaffrey were compelled to engage Dr. George Burnham, of Hillsboro, to perform a satisfactory legal autopsy.

That this should have been done immediately following the discovery of the body of Dr. Dean in the cistern, at the expense of the county and State, but that it was neglected by County Solicitor Pickard among many other things.

While the board advised the Selectmen not to offer a town reward as he would see that the county offered $1,000, but never did pay.

That Mr. Pickard declined to conduct a grand jury inquiry until eight months after the murder and then only under great pressure and after widespread public criticism.

That Mr. Pickard did not call the grand jury after he had proposed a medical referee's inquest, which would be open to the public in Jaffrey, but in which no such people could hear all the evidence.

That he made a second proposition to President George H. Duncan of the Jaffrey Board of Trade to close the doors and that Mr. Duncan told him that the public did not care to hear the evidence, but simply demanded action.

That Mr. Pickard suggested this public hearing of medical evidence as a substitute of a grand jury inquiry, which for months he claimed he had no authority to call and that this was the first thing he should have done under the law, according to the selectmen.

SUNDAY CONCERT AND VAUDEVILLE

STRANSKY TO PLAY 'EROICA'

The New York Philharmonic Orchestra, which will pay its first visit to Boston in two years, has been in existence just twice as long as the Boston Symphony, and is dean of American orchestras. "The History of the Philharmonic is the history of music in America," says James Gibbons Huneker, meaning that symphonic music in this country began with its inception in 1842.

Furthermore it is the third oldest organization of its kind in the world, only the London Philharmonic and the Vienna Philharmonic having been organized previously. The list of conductors is a hall of fame. Theodore Thomas, Anton Seidl, Colonne, Wasslly, Safonoff, Sir Henry Wood, Gustav Mahler, and now Josef Stransky in his ninth season, conductor and has brought the orchestra up into the very front rank of symphonic organizations.

For his Boston program Stransky, who excells in works by Tschaikowsky and Wagner, has placed the Berry "1812" overture on his program and the Bacchanalia from Tannhauser. Beethoven's Eroica Symphony and Rachmaninoff's "Isle of the Dead" completa the program. For the "Eroica," he is bringing over six extra musicians from New York, the full strength of the orchestra, being 97 men.

PARK THEATRE

"On With the Dance," one of the most intensely interesting and daring photoplays of the year, written by Olda Bergere from Michael Morton's play of the same name, begins an engagement at the Park Theatre next Monday. It is the first new Paramount-Artcraft superproduction to be presented under the new policy of a lower scale of prices at this theatre.

"On With the Dance" is a startlingly dramatic presentation of the adventure of a young Russian girl in New York. It contains several love tangles of unusual interest, and combines thrills, suspense and heart interest in a manner which keeps the audience on edge and all attention.

Mae Murray and Darrell Powell, the featured players of this unusual play of modern society life in New York, are well known as among the most talented players before the camera.

MODERN AND BEACON

An excellent program of feature pictures will be shown next week at the Modern and Beacon with Charles Ray in his latest rural characterization "Alarm Clock Andy" as the headline attraction. Dorothy Dalton in "Black Is White" and Harold Lloyd in Captain Kidd's Kids" complete the bill.

"Alarm Clock Andy" presents Charles Ray in another one of those small town stories in which he starts off as somewhat of a "boob" and finishes like a million dollars.

Dorothy Dalton appears in "Black Is White," a filmization of George Barr McCutcheon's famous story. The plot of the piece is perhaps too well known to need repeating here.

CAMBRIDGE CENTRAL SQ.

Nazimova, the brilliant Russian star, in her newest production, "Stronger Than Death," is announced by the management of Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre as a special attraction on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

In "Stronger Than Death" Nazimova returns to powerful emotional roles after her clever impersonation of the chorus waif in the screen version of Maude Fulton's Morocco stage play, "The Hoyden." Nazimova is cast as Sigrid, a London music hall dancer, who finds love in the wilderness of India, whither she goes for rest.

THE FOKINES

The visit of Michael Fokine and his wife, Vera, to Symphony Hall on Friday evening, February 20, is of great interest to lovers of the Russian ballet, since many of the most famous of the works presented by Diaghileff and Nijinsky were conceived and arranged by Fokine. Vera Fokine is one of the trio of great Russian dancers, the others being Pavlowa and Karsovina. The Fokines were introduced to come to America by Morris Gest to arrange the ballet for "Aphrodite" at the Century Theatre. After this work was done they gave a dance recital in the Metropolitan Opera House and later in the New York Hippodrome.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM THEATRE

The top-line vaudeville feature for the initial half of the coming week will be Gerald Griffin and Company. Mr. Griffin has built his bestowed upon him the title of "Ireland's Sweetest Singer," and is heralded with equal fervor as his offering entitled, "A Romance of Ireland." Mason and Gwynne will bring with them a novel interpretation of "The South of Today." The feature film will show delightful Shirley Mason in William Fox's great picture, "Her Elephant Man."

LOEW'S GLOBE THEATRE

Shirley Mason will be shown in her new William Fox production "Her Elephant Man" which is heralded as a distinct sensation, depicting in a most realistic manner the life of the circus performers, their loves and customs. So real, in fact, is her work that, it is of the well known circus managers, Ringling Brothers (John and Charles) personally congratulated the actress having seen a pre-release of the film. Monroe Salisbury will also be shown in "The Phantom Melody"—possessed of a story of human appeal.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA

After provoking a continuous riot of fun all last week at Gordon's Olympia, Douglas Fairbanks' latest, "When the Clouds Roll By," will be shown next week at the Scollay Square Olympia.

In this production "Doug" has broken away from the traditional screen stories and has produced a rip-roaring comedy entirely different from the basic principle underlying this feature is quite new to motion picture and incidentally is a distinct departure from the point of view of the darling from the point of view of the accepted screen limitations and ideas.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA

In no way a problem or propaganda play, "Should a Woman Tell?" which heads the bill at Gordon's Olympia next week, presents merely the picture of the play of emotions in a good woman's heart when torn between her desire for truth and her fear of the loss of the man she loves more than life itself. Her being in this predicament was, in the larger sense, no fault of hers.

'Greatest of Russian Dancers Coming

MICHAEL FOKINE.

The crude gesticulations of market woman haggling with street vendors have their artistic possibilities, according to Michel Fokine, creator and inspirer of the modern Russian ballet. Together with his fascinating and equally famous wife, Vera Fokine, Fokine will give a program of dances from his greatest works Friday evening, February 20, at Symphony Hall.

"Gesture is the basis of the dance," says Fokine. "It is the reflection of the psychic racial basis of any individual. Genuine feeling and racial characteristics are conveyed by gesture, and when raised to a high degree of art they become the rhythmic expression of an intensely felt emotion, as real an expression as a bar of music, or a statue, or a painting."

WALDORF THEATRE

An innovation will be introduced at the Waldorf Theatre beginning next Monday, when a company headed by the well-known comedian, Danny Lund, will begin the presentation of a series of up to the minute musical revues. Two revues will be given each week, the bill being changed on Thursday and Monday, when new feature pictures will also begin three days' engagement.

The picture policy of the theatre will not be changed in connection with the new revue engagement, as a proof of which Nazimova in "The Brat" will be offered for the first three days of the week.

COMMUNITY PLAYERS

The Boston Community Players will present on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, February 10 and 12, at Peabody Playhouse three one-act plays. "The Gazing Globe," by Eugene Pillot, a pupil of Professor George Pierce Baker; "The Price of Coal," by Harold Brighouse, and "Aria da Capo," by Edna St. Vincent Millay, a notable success of the Provincetown Players, First presentation in Boston. Reginald Boardman, plan ist.

LOEW'S COLUMBIA THEATRE

Madeline Traverse heads the list of attractive features for Loew's Columbia Theatre, the coming week, in "What Would You Do?" a story with thrills and throbs and the eternal question of love. In addition to this Gladys Leslie will be shown in "The Midnight Bride." Tuesday's program includes Wallace Reid in "Hawthorne of the U. S. A." and Florence Billings in "False Gods."

SYMPHONY CONCERT

At the Boston Symphony Concerts in Symphony Hall next Friday and Saturday, the piano concertino by John Adam Chrysostom Chicago's composer, will have its first performance here. For the same programs Pierre Monteux has chosen Schumann's "Rhenish" Symphony No. 3, and Goldmark's overture to "Sakuntala."

TREMONT TEMPLE

Mary Pickford continues to dispense the happiness of "the glad philosophy through the charming United Artists' screen version of Mrs. Eleanor H. Porter's romantic story of "Pollyanna," being personally presented at Tremont Temple by Nathan H. Gordon.

BOSTON THEATRE

At the Boston Theatre next week will be seen the greatest motion picture thrills so far produced—a thriller of the skies entitled "The Great Air Robbery."

PROF. SHARP HURT, BUT WILL LECTURE

Although suffering from a dislocated shoulder, Professor Dallas Lore Sharp of Boston University expects to give his scheduled address Sunday evening at the Tremont Israel Forum, Commonwealth Avenue, on "Education for Democracy."

Professor Sharp received the injury when he was thrown from the sleigh in which he and his son Dallas Lore Sharp, jr., were riding on their way to the railroad station at Weymouth.

HHILLQUIT TO TESTIFY FOR N. Y. SOCIALISTS

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Health permitting, Morris Hillquit, chief counsel for the five suspended Socialist Assemblymen, will return from Saranac Lake Tuesday and, when the Socialists open their defence, will take the stand as an expert on socialism to rebut testimony of Peter W. Collins of Boston Knights of Columbus, the orator who has repeatedly testified that socialism is a menace to the U. S. government.

WILLIAM BARRY'S NAME USED BY IMPOSTER

On January 24 it was stated in the American that William Barry, No. 248 West Fourth street, South Boston, had been taken to the City Hospital suffering from wood alcohol poisoning. Investigation reveals that an imposter who gave that name had been treated at the hospital. Mr. Barry enjoys an excellent reputation, was not a wood alcohol sufferer and the American hastens to correct an unintentional error.
